Pharos 1971

in fields
by campus
candles grow
warm-waxing
leaves
the students
heat-to-gold
at lasts
so cold
listened long ago
to tears
that slide
from surface things
shadows the forge-tide
where candles glow
and cool
by sleepless
eyes.

ivy guise
for stainless
minds — so heavy
on her brow
eyes aloft
heroes in the blaze
drum-belt lies
a gaze
on reason
defined
and lines
of silhouettes
dancing in the wine,
comes Marie.

when
a crowd
gathered in madness
at her ears
with whispers
declared the game
officially open;
faces turned
the fray
and called
for anonymity.
orgasm leaped
from tree to tree,
colors gut the trail
finally held at bay
and slaughtered
we celebrate underground
on the campus,
floods of booze
and el-es-deeee
carrying the field.

we kill, we kill rushing
to the fore
where many angry voices
call us
back,
onward
we fly
wining the glasses away
to God
confronting,
ultimately
we elements in pre-natal
graffiti
emblazoned in the sky
till we a-dore
to the door
and back again,
merry old
do-si-do.

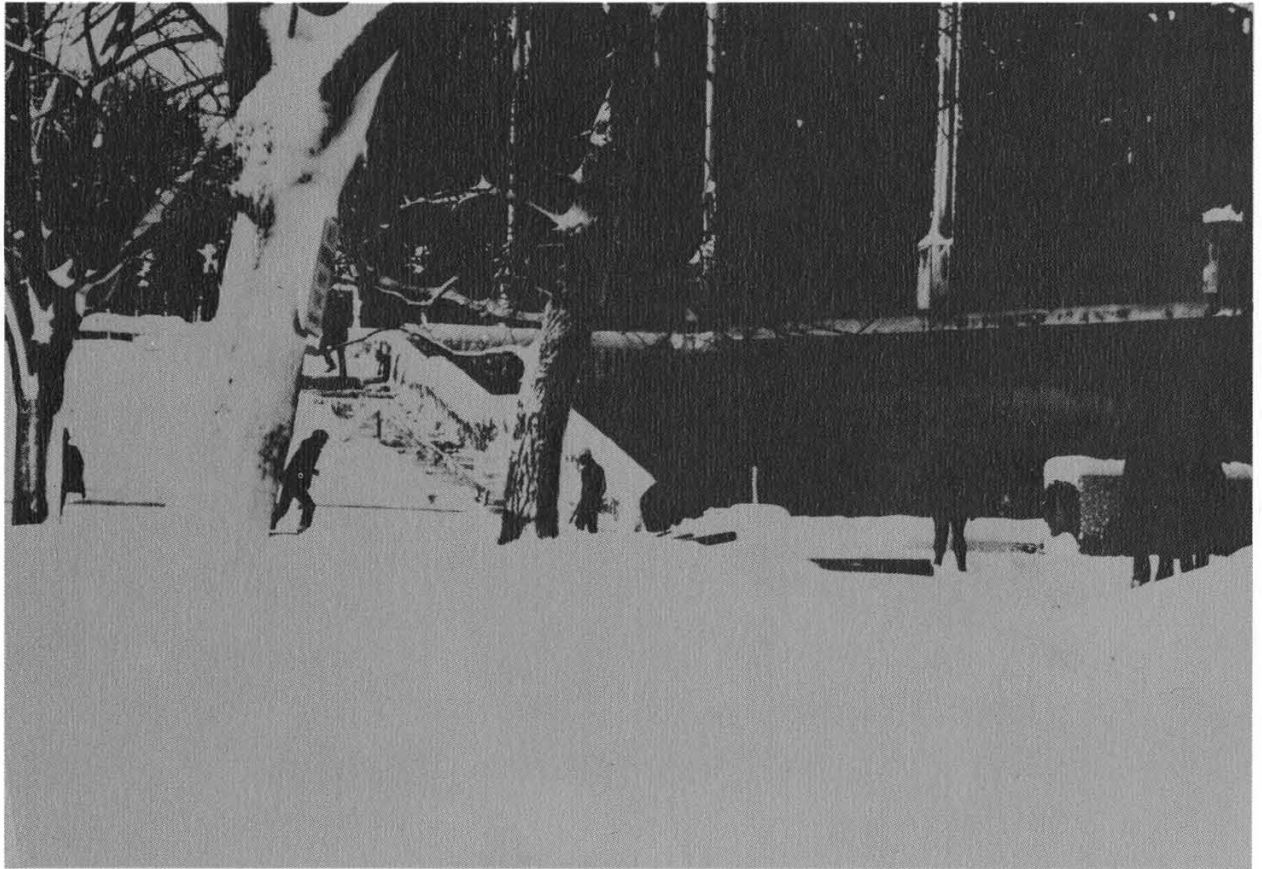

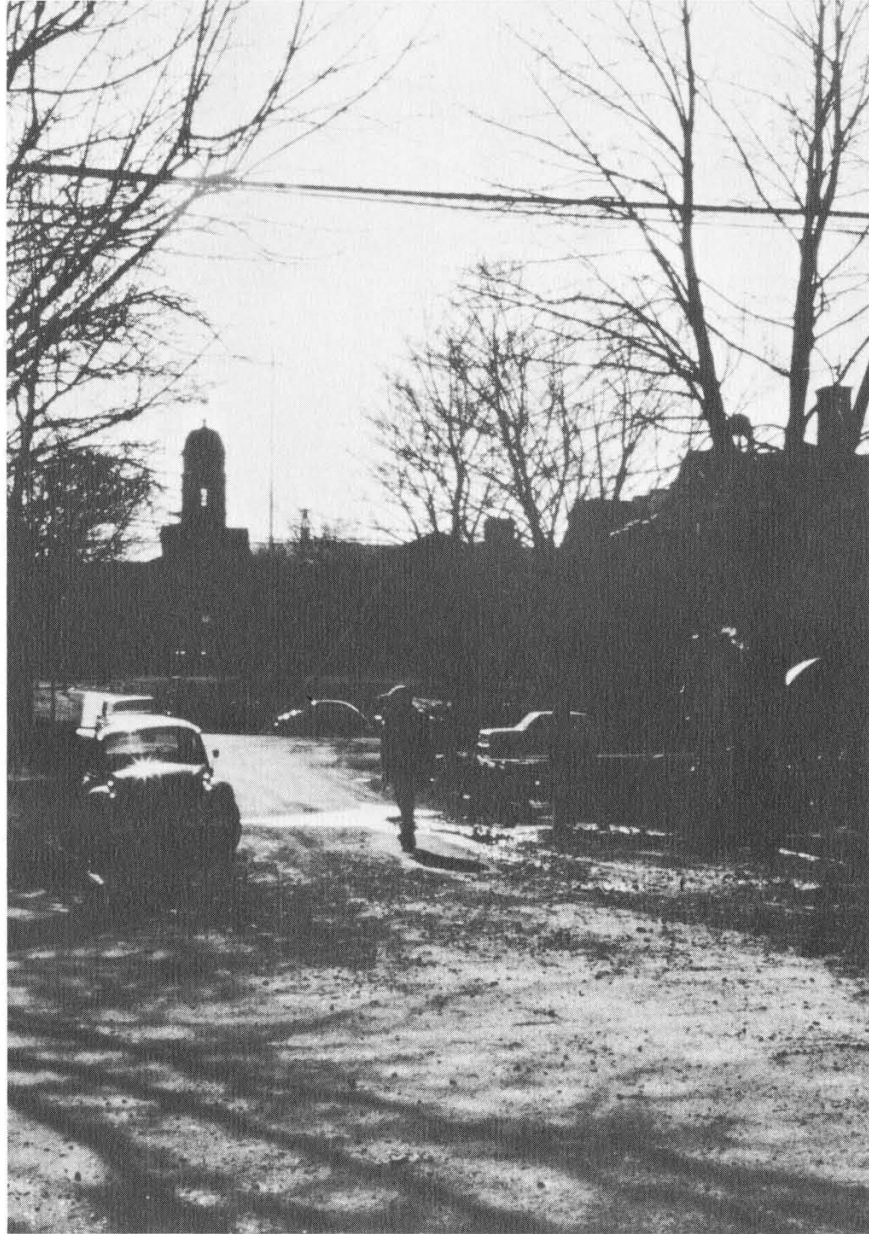

pour la danse
pour la danse
tout est pour la danse.
heaving senses
anteing minds
into the pot,
o feast,
dealing off the aces
and white-furred
knights black robes
streaming high
in golden sunsets
wheeling in grand array
mighty weapons,
float with tears
to grease
o sloped way
till we all
fall down,
go guzzle.

discovery
at last
with friend
of Tarot Cards
— distant battles
rage,
forgotten warriors,
topple
the walls
and roomy
did get laid
last night, after all.
all part
of it
we sing
of I Ching;
war
glances behind,
the fantasy
closes
and every body stops.

on the fringe
automatons
fluoresced
in darkness, coupled
in secret,
gears meshing
to grind
all space
time by sweat
gone
(the wind pushes a scrap of paper down the road) they move
suddenly,
and it is over.

comes a vision
old and torn
of campus
days
lost
in the storm,
a short escape,
quicken
breath
in golden morns
our
black silhouettes
break
the dawn
where widows weep
for our childhoods,
the endless
whispers
in the dregs of the wine.

Frosh beanies and other related paraphenalia disappeared from frosh week this year. In a small way this was indicative of the radical change this campus has under gone during the last few years.

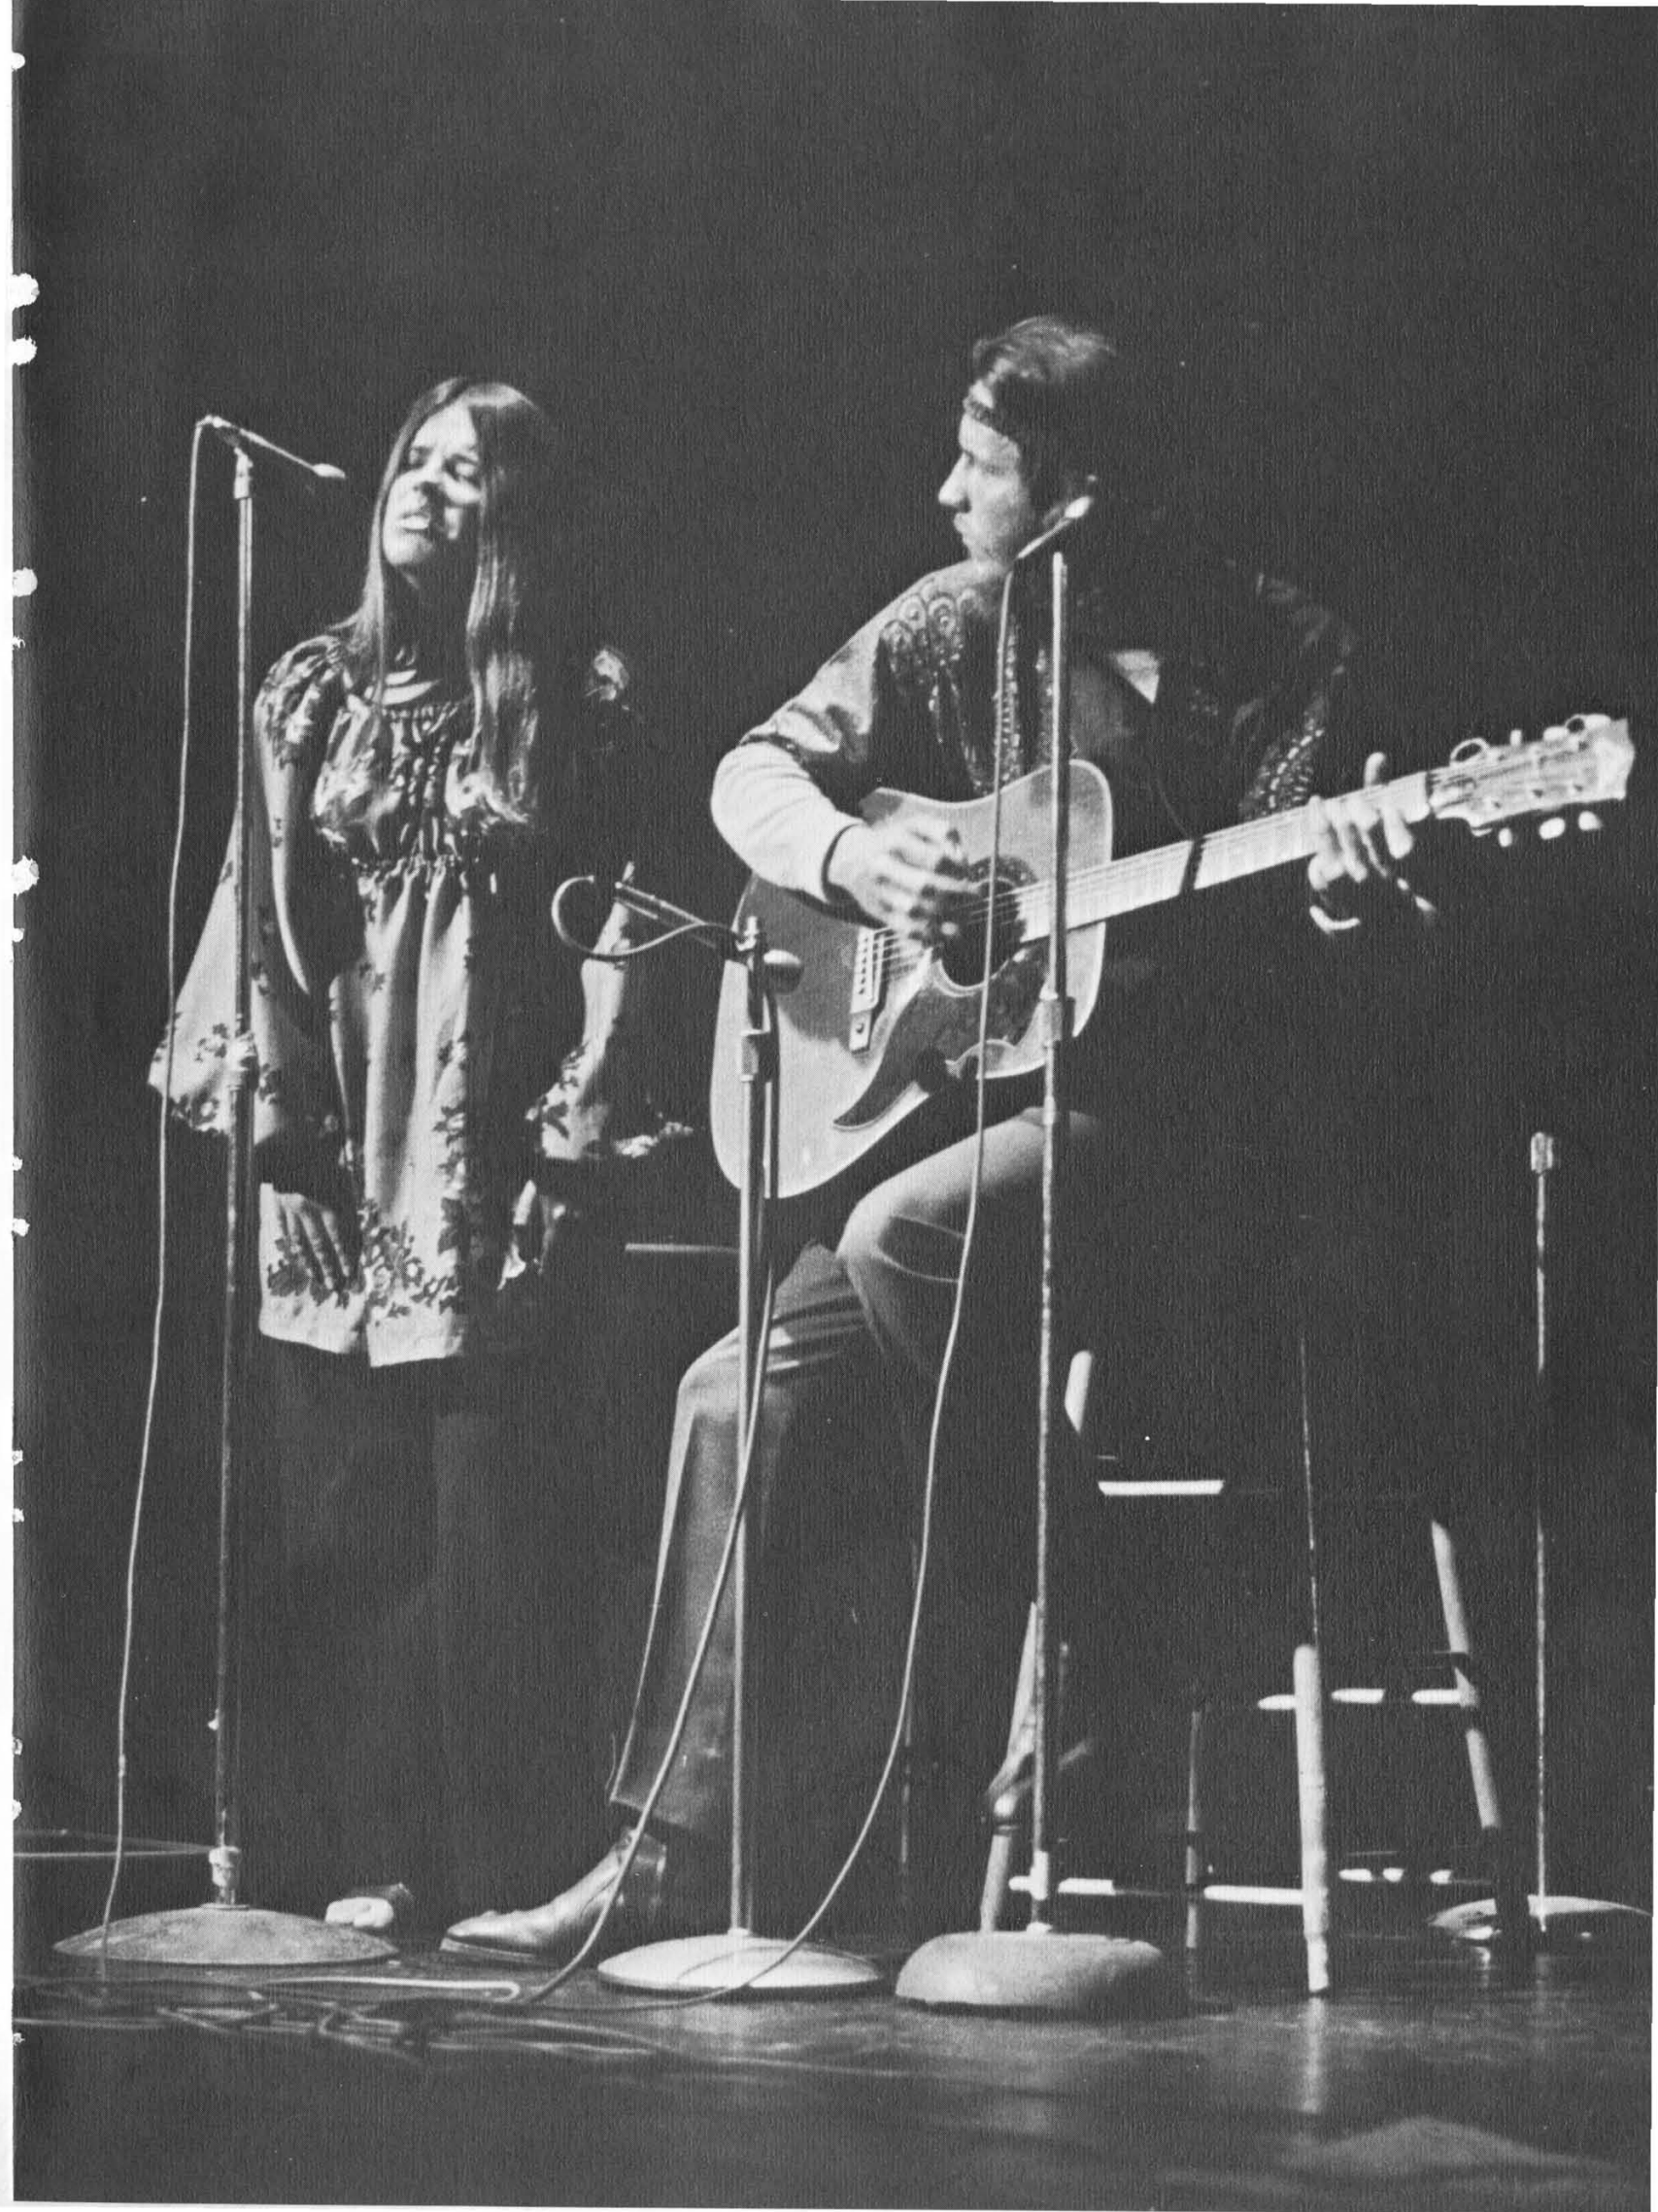

Its good that meaningless and degrading traditions are discarded. Are we however replacing them with something better? Are we replacing old values with no values? Only time will provide the final answer.

DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY
HALIFAX, N.S.

PRESIDENT AND VICE-CHANCELLOR

March 15, 1971

TO THE CLASS OF 1971:

I am again indebted to the Editor of Pharos for this opportunity to say farewell to you who are graduating this spring.

There used to be a cartoon feature in the local newspaper with the caption "Born Thirty Years Too Soon". Indeed, there may have been times during your years on campus when you felt you were born (if not thirty years) five years too soon, as we asked you to work and study under difficult conditions caused by the shortage of space brought on by our rapidly increasing enrolment. However, in your last months at Dalhousie, you have enjoyed the benefits of a spacious and comfortable Library; shared in a first-class music auditorium which is part of a very functional new Arts Centre; and watched an exciting Life Sciences complex nearing completion.

The demands of higher education today for newer and greater facilities to accommodate the ever-increasing number of students depend heavily on the interest and support of government and the public. You have been fortunate to attend university at a time when this moral and financial support has been forthcoming.

I am pleased to say that Dalhousie graduates, who have made their mark all over the world, maintain a keen interest in their Alma Mater; and I hope you will try to keep in touch with us through our Alumni Association and the periodic class reunions it arranges for your benefit.

I wish you well as you leave Dalhousie.

Yours very sincerely,

Henry D. Hicks

Thank you Dr. Hicks . . . Mr. McInnes, President Hicks, Distinguished Guests, Members of the Board, Honourable Senators, Faculty Members, Administration Officials, Fellow Graduates, Ladies and Gentlemen.

...

Before I say anything, let me say this:

...

We have reached the threshold we have been told so much about in our youth . . . we now face the onerous tasks and inherent responsibilities of our life.

Many of us are leaving Dalhousie today to launch into our new found careers and lifestyles . . . for we are in the vanguard of the just society: ours is not to criticize . . . ours is to mold . . . now that I have completed my validictory address, I want to say something . . .

Originally, I came to Dalhousie and enrolled in Commerce . . . for security . . . I wanted a place . . . something to hang my hat on . . . to be somebody.

But today — three years later — with a Commerce Degree over there in my chair . . . I realize that security is more than a piece of paper . . . But it's taught me to think . . . I now have more questions . . . I have just realized the magnitude of things that I just don't know.

I remember so well wading into my first class here . . . and when I left . . . I was scared . . . I didn't think I was going to be able to follow through . . . I didn't really know which way was up . . . but today . . . I say so what . . . I did it . . . I have a degree . . . so what . . . that wasn't really that hard . . . now what's next . . . bring on the challenge . . . and the biggest challenge . . . is facing reality . . . reality is our greatest friend . . . one of today's biggest crimes is to be afraid of reality . . .

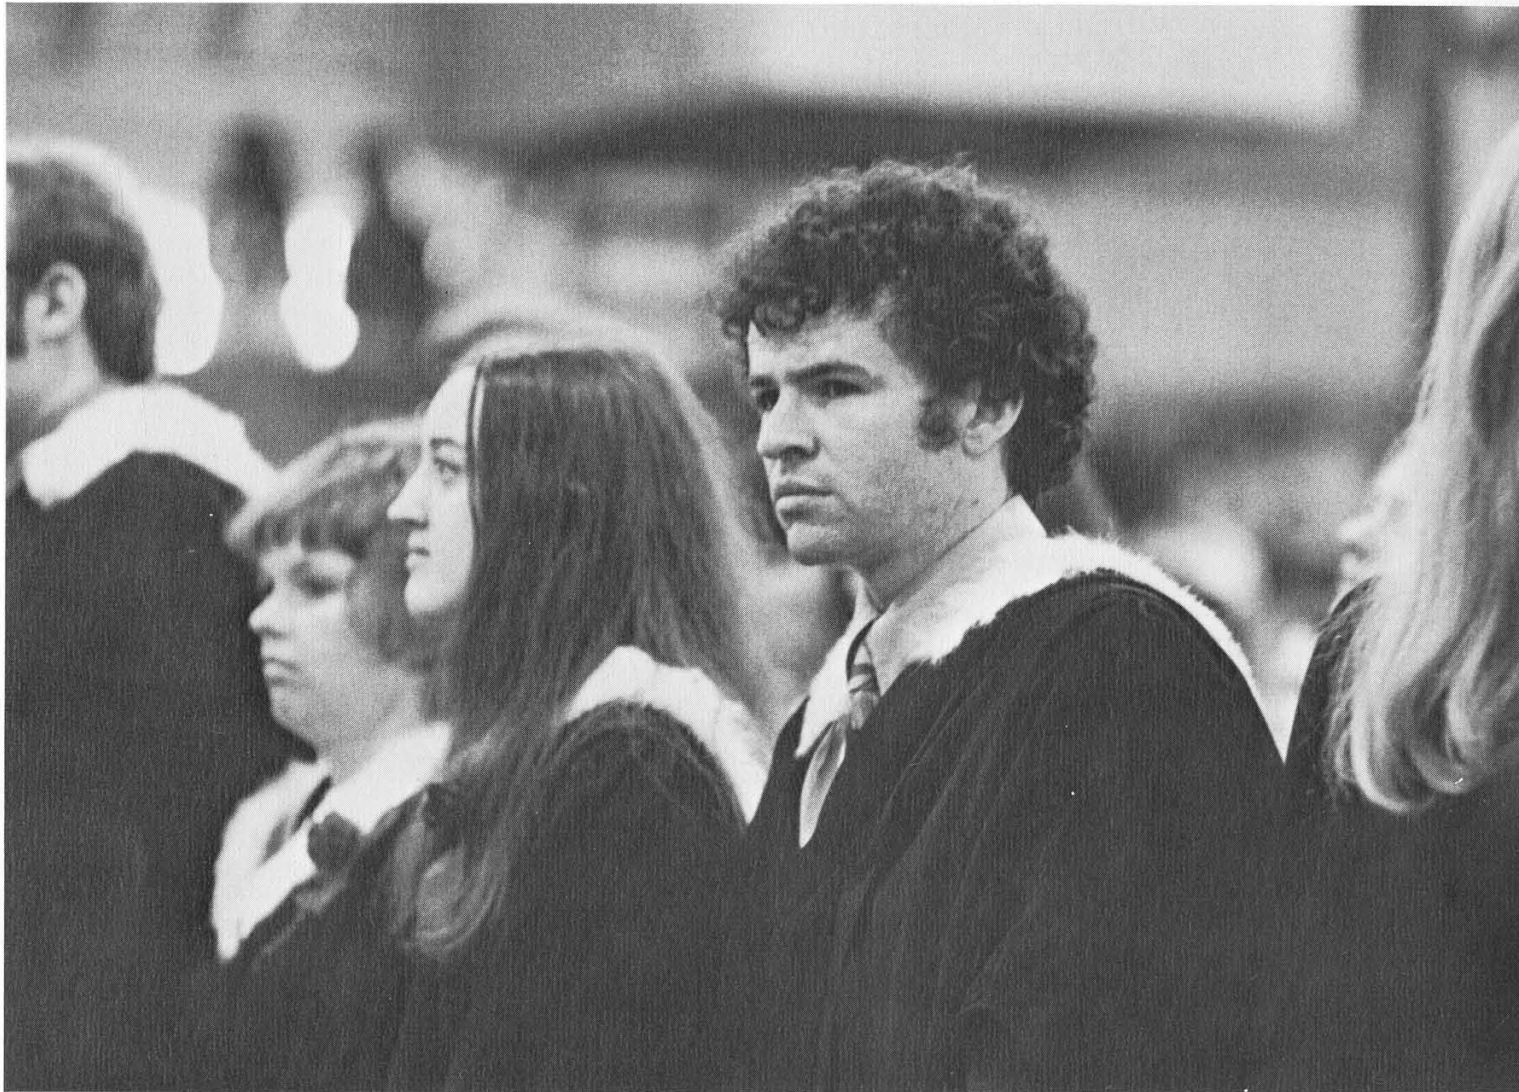

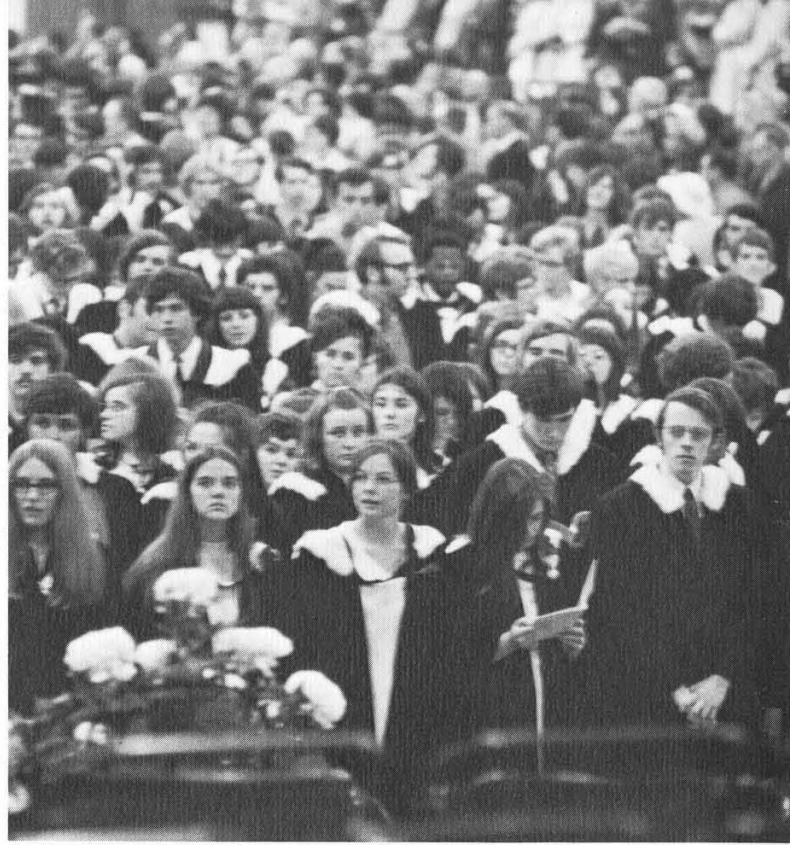

There's a lot more to a person than a whole bunch of letters after his name . . . and that's what we have to remember . . . sure, we remember all the Physics, Psychology, Political Science, Statistics — the full gamut of what's so loosely called "Formal Education" . . . but lets not drop that out of the context of reality . . . too many graduates like us use a degree just like a drunk uses a lamppost . . . more for support than for illumination.

Too many people hide from their insecurity by thinking of what they are going to be — golly, just think when I'm . . . but we can't worry about what we're going to be . . . unless we discover what we are . . . and that's reality . . . the hardest job I have is being me . . . and . . . sometimes I search for what I am . . . and it's what I am — what we all are — right now that counts . . . we're really not on the threshold of anything . . . we're a part of what's happening all around us right now . . . and we have been a part of that all along facing that reality — that's what counts.

It's just too easy to hide from that too easy — to criticize . . . and too easy not to do . . . but "It's not the critic who counts . . . the credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena — whose face is marred by dust, and sweat . . . and blood . . . who at the best . . . knows in the end the triumph of high achievement . . . and who at the worst . . . if he fails . . . at least fails . . . while daring greatly . . . so that his place will never be with those timid soles who know neither victory nor defeat."

Our place is not to start something now — because it was started years ago . . . our place is not to be one of Hemmingway's timid soles . . . not to smother ourselves . . . not to disguise ourselves . . . but to be ourselves . . . not to bury question marks . . . but to seek them . . .

We really ask for no applause . . . because (applause belongs after) the curtain has come down, after the actors have played their roles and after you have assessed the quality of our performance . . . I had always known that some day I would take this road . . . but yesterday . . . I didn't know it would be today.

Another fountain of knowledge being capped.

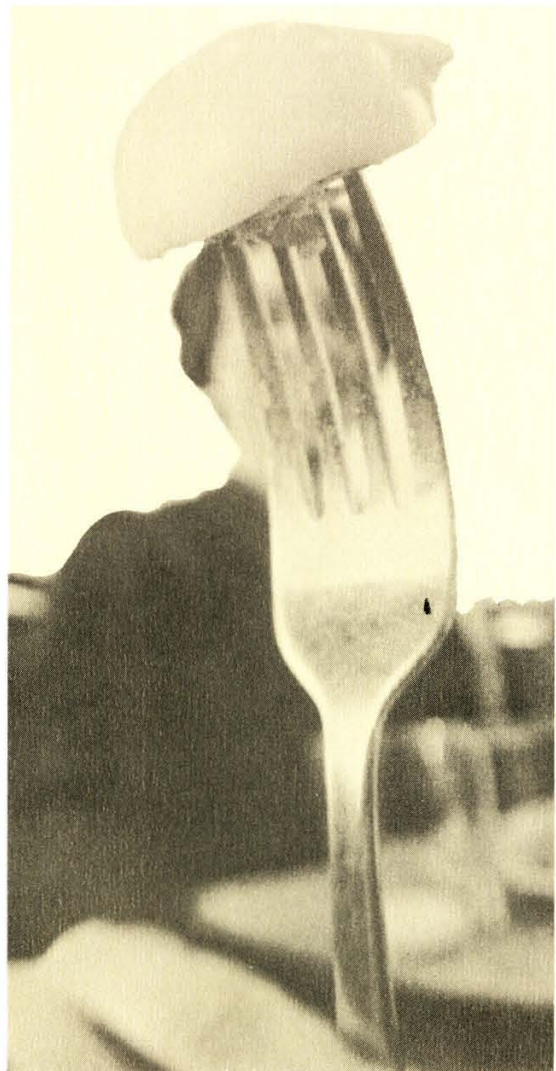

A scene which must have been repeated thousands of times since Dal has granted degrees.

PARADISE
REGAINED

Home Is...

Paradise

Why must every generation think their folks are square?
And no matter where their heads are they no mom's ain't there.
Cause I swore when I was small that I'd remember when I knew whats wrong with them I was smaller than

Determined to remember all the cardinal rules
Like sunshowers as legal grounds for cutting school
I know I have forgotten maybe one or two
And I hope that I recall them all before the babe is due

Sheriff Hall

And I know that he'll have a question or two Like:

"Hey pop can I go ride my zoom,
it goes two hundred miles an hour
suspended on the loons.
And can I put a droplet of this new stuff
on my tongue and imagine frothing dragons

while you sit and wreck your lungs?"

And I must be permissive understanding of the younger generation.

And then I'll know that all I've learned my kid assumes
And all my deepest worries must be his cartoons
And still I'll try to tell him all the things I've done relating to what he can do when he becomes a man.
And still he'll stick his fingers in the fan.

Howe Hall

“And hey pop
My girl friend's only three
She got her own video phone and she's takin L.S.D.
And now that we're best friends

Boat Harbour, Church on Reservation. Lead paint reacts with  $H_2S$  [Hydrogen Sulphide.]

I recently sifted through several term papers written by students who participated in our experimental class. These students had one common interest — that the quality of our environment is rapidly deteriorating.

The options presented by such classes are of great potential. Obviously they enliven student interest by offering opportunities for study which are not on the college calendar. Furthermore, it channels interest by providing a structure in which others of like mind may share their interest.

This particular class however, deserves some comment. It dealt with a very real and directly observable problem — pollution of our environment.

Two options face such classes. They may constitute themselves into an essentially action-orientated group or they may constitute themselves into an essentially academic type of study group. If the former is the case, then there is little potential for such classes, other than their being a means for students to follow their particular esoteric interests.

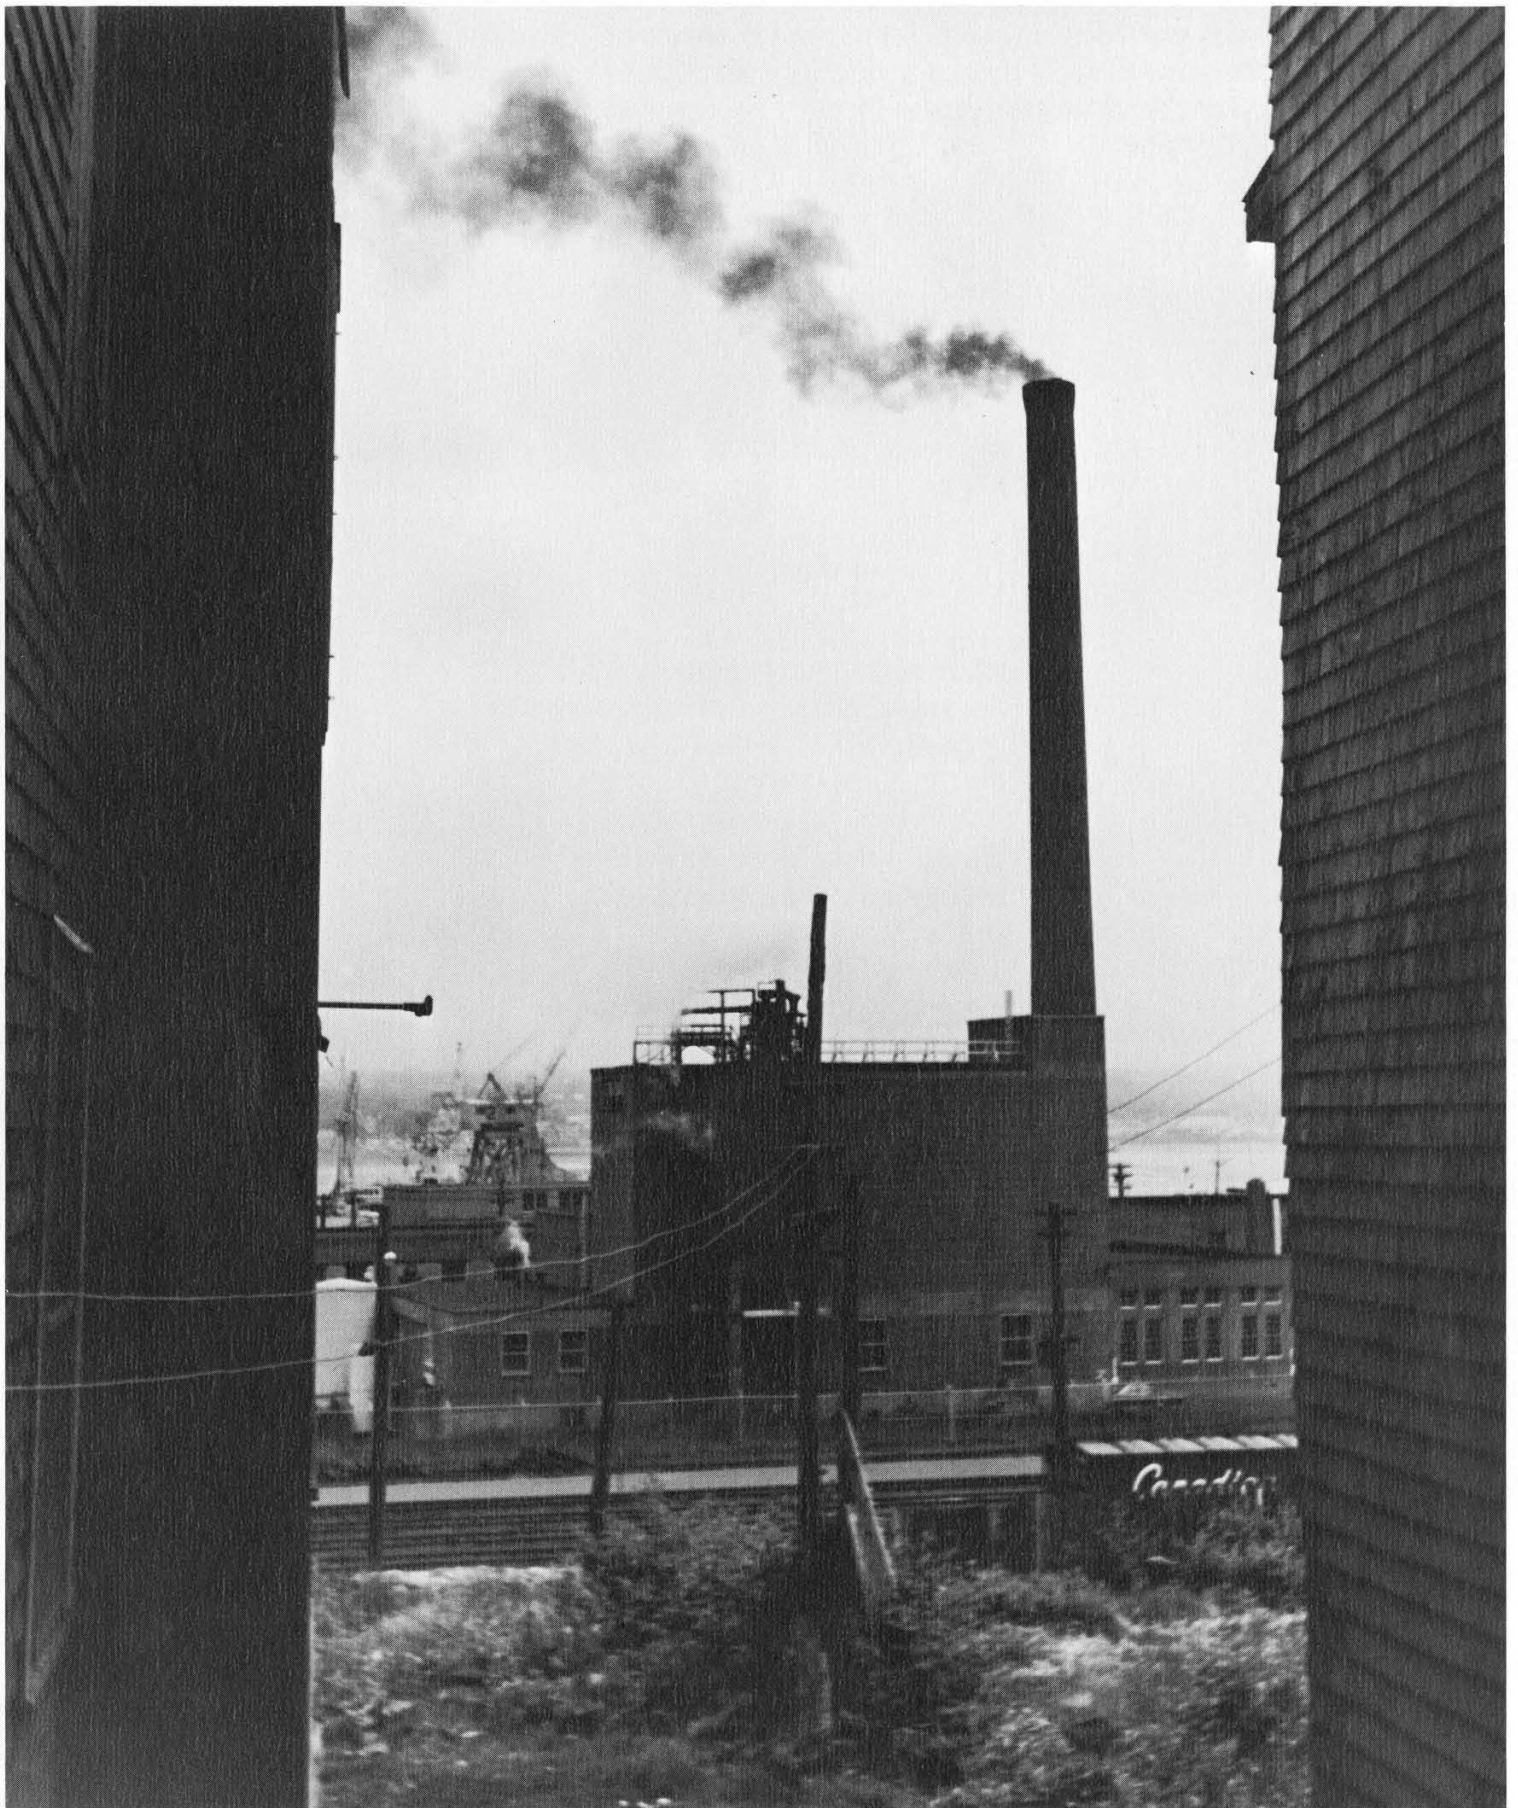

The academic side of this type of class (where the two options I noted are available) will probably predominate while the central goal of taking a course is to get a credit.

Students invest a great deal of time and money and sometimes effort in getting their degrees. It is not surprising then, that the university has such a co-optive influence over action-orientated groups. Action is not discouraged but the capacity for control is definitely a factor of no small significance.

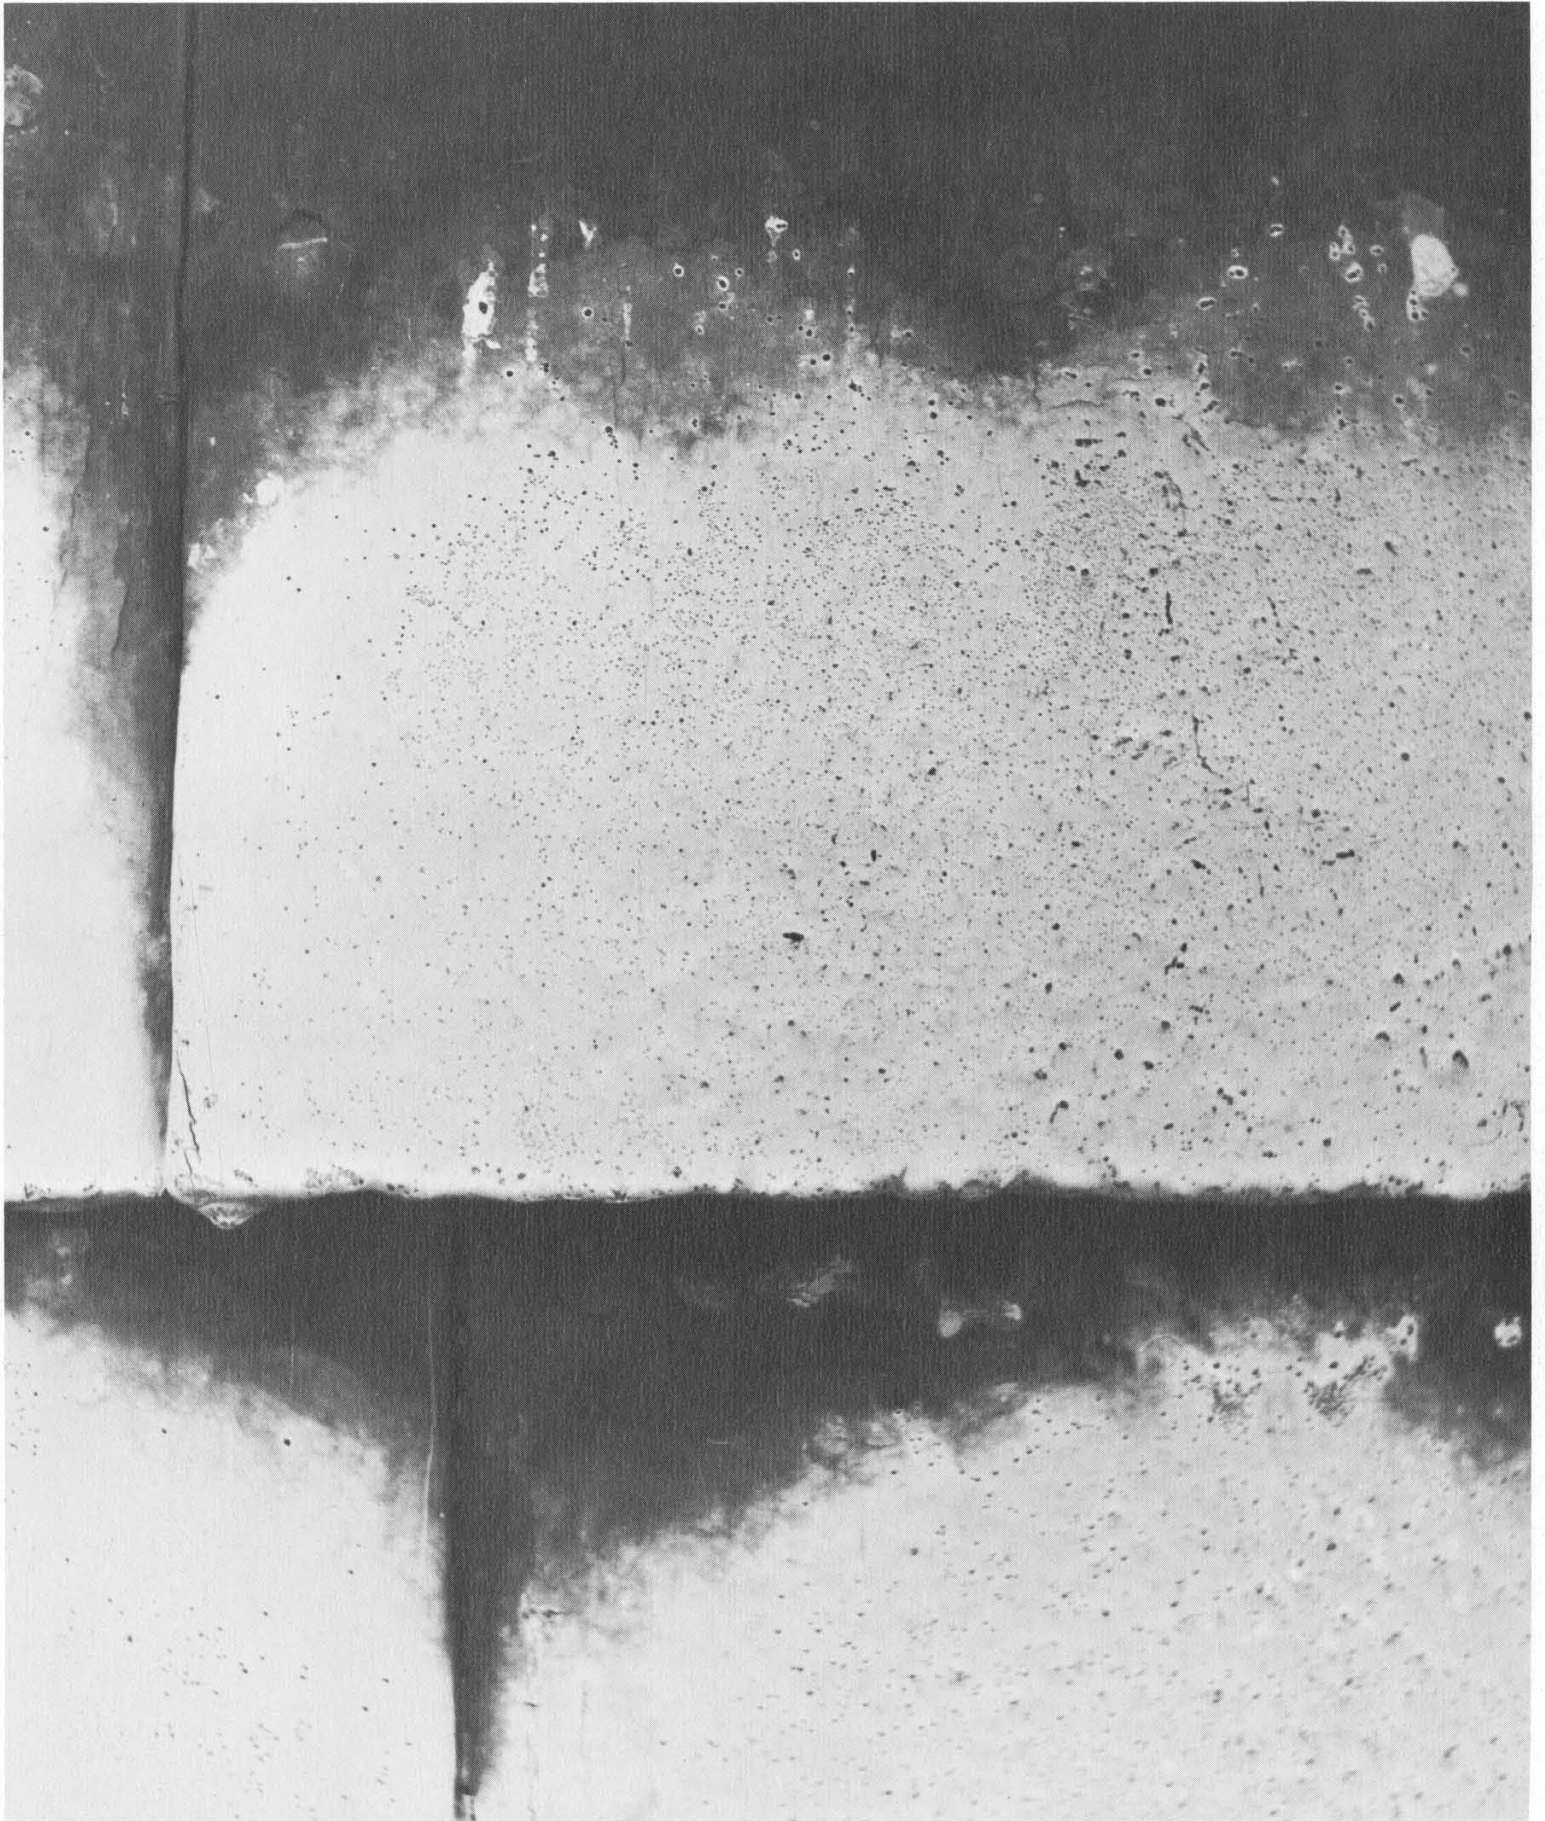

A question to be answered by many students who are orientated toward such classes is whether or not an action-orientated group can function within the constraints presented by the university structure.

Experience has proven that any group which seeks to do more than study a particular problem must draw its strength from sharing a common goal or goals which predominate all other goals that individuals of the group may have. Such a situation is not likely when individual students face the conflict of spending time getting marks or spending time putting studies into action.

The instances of physical and social pollution on these pages underline the urgency of the conflict.

A Red Flag?

by Dorothy Wigmore

A red rag. A left-wing publication. That's what they call us. If only they new.

They're not the ones that have to spend time working on this thing. They complain, but never do anything, typical of things around this university.

What did we do this year anyway? What have we got to be proud of? Anything?

I think so. We came together more than any other time. We were putting out a paper collectively. And that's something. Back in September we said we wanted to set up collectives — for writing and editing, photography, layout, etc. But there just wasn't that spirit there. We learned though. All of us did. Most of the people who work on the paper do both writing and layout. We've found it works.

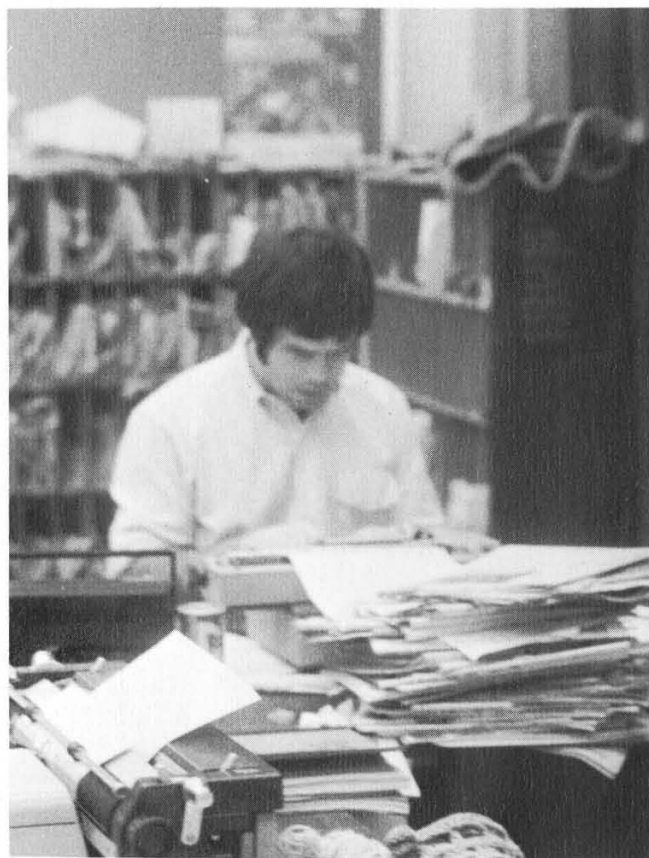

Okay let's get down to work. Who's got their story done? That sounds familiar to all of us. Will everyone look at this before it goes in. What do you think of it? Okay I know my typing's shitty. What do you think of the lead? I had problems getting started.

Well remember that the lead is supposed to be concise and introduce people to your story. What are you trying to say, or what is the most important thing in the story? Go from there to tell people about it, organizing the story in terms of chronological order, or in order of importance. And get some good quotes in it.

Has the sports copy come in? Will you do the feature layout, please. I know, we'll be in here until 7 this morning. Masochists all of us. Don't forget the staff meeting tomorrow. And check on the follow-up to the story you wrote this week.

A typical layout night. Everyone starting to work late, and going through until the morning. Well, we enjoy it, it's interesting. Oh, did you get those pics from Photography. Thank heavens those guys stay until they finish our pics.

What big stories did we do? Well, we followed the Lawvere case from the beginning, and tried to provide info on what was going on in Quebec, and we put out a put-on edition, which everyone believed, and we tried to follow student activities, and get more local content. The local content went up enormously from other years.

Help! Help!

The Gazette needs help. To produce a paper relevant to the campus, and the community, we need more people to write stories and/ or inform us about campus or community events. All the help we can get would be appreciated.

We cannot tell people about what's going on on campus unless we have more information. Come in and see us on the third floor of the SUB. If no one's in, leave a message on the door, or at the SUB Enquiry desk.

Barry Mc Peake.

The War Measures Act

Christ, this War Measures Act really means we can get arrested for informing people. What is the government so scared of? That Turdeau sure is not the nice guy he pretended to be back in '68.

But people have a right to know what all the fuss is about. Blasted printer screwed us up with that blank front page. It was only Montreal Star copy, so what did he have to worry about? Well at least we've got another printer.

Yeah, we should be telling people about the events, the Chronic-Error and Male-Sterile sure won't. Did you hear about the demonstrations in Montreal and about the 19 Gaspé priests who signed a statement saying they supported the aims of the FLQ. That should be made known.

But nobody else seems to be doing anything. A lot of people are mad about the Act, but there's no action to oppose it.

Everybody's scared I guess. Thank heavens CUP still's going, although they may get shut down soon.

When I was there that Friday, they were really paranoid and with good reason. The soldiers were all over Ottawa. And Saturday on the hill was something, after they discovered Laporte's body. You should have seen Turdeau's face. One of the photogs got a pic of him going into the building, and was he mad.

But, you have to remember that the Act is only really in force in Quebec. Even the Financial Post had copy censored, when they tried to write about the economic effects of the crisis. Some papers were censored in Ontario and out west. The problem here is that most of the people don't understand how this whole thing relates to them. They've enough problems of their own, they figure. They're getting some stuff about the situation in the daily press, but it's all the official statements, et cetera. If we try to tell them something different, they may not read it, figuring it's the same stuff all over again.

Well, we have to decide. Let's do what we can, and what we feel people can accept and will read. Agreed?

That Lawvere Thing

That Lawvere thing. To me it seems such an obvious case of political work, him getting fired, or should I say that his contract was not renewed. It doesn't make much difference.

You know that he's the top scholar in his field in the world, eh? So it sure can't be his qualifications. If he weren't a Maoist, the whole thing would be so different.

It's their tactics I disagree with. All those slogans, they don't reach people that way. They put themselves too much above them.

Even so, that's no reason to fire Lawvere. They're using the War Measures Act incident at the Law school as an excuse, I think, but they sure don't have much evidence. From what I hear, the law students weren't exactly out of the whole thing. They seem to have provoked most of the fighting themselves.

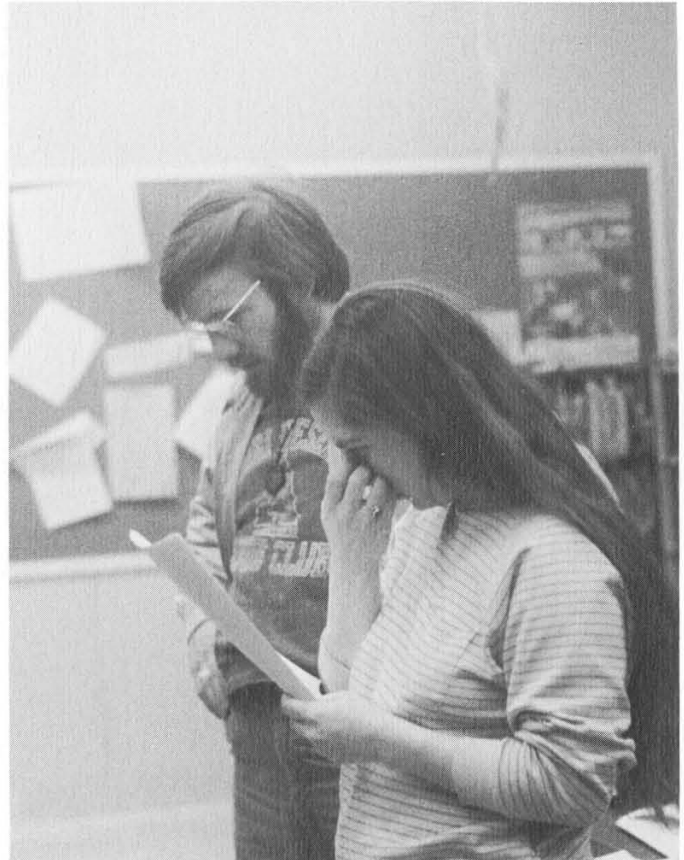

And they've done the same thing to Greg Neumann too. I don't see how they claim there's nothing political about this.

Well what do you all think we should do? Blow it up, follow it up or just plain let things ride, and do something if it gets big?

Let's follow it up. There's just not enough evidence being presented right now. And the person who started writing on the story, can do the follow-up best cause he knows the people involved.

Everyone should read the copy before it goes in the paper, though.

Sure, there's no problem there.

Staff members Brian Jamieson and Barb Harris.

A Humour Edition

Hey let's put out a humour edition. We can do it during March break, and that means there's less work to do, if we have everything done ahead of time.

We can do parodies of Students' Council or Hicks. Or what about tuition going up so that only upper class kids can come to university. We need some sports stories too.

Did you see the put-on edition put out by the CARLETON? It had a good story in it about a teddy bear rampaging through the day care center and eating five kids. That would be good, and there's a graphic to go with it.

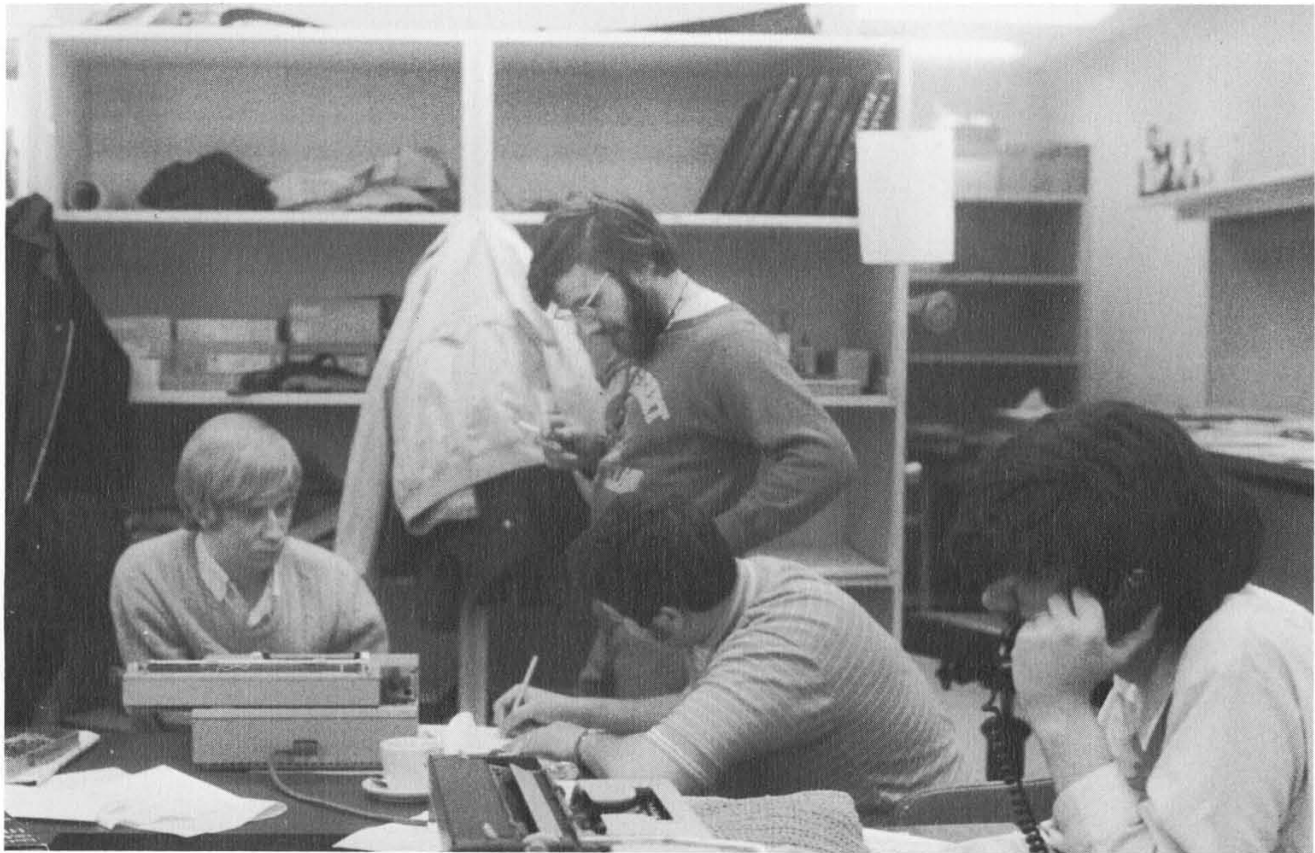

Well, if everyone works on their ideas and has them ready for early in the week of March break, we can get things done ahead of time, and still have some time for a vacation. Will that be okay?

Don't know why not. I think we could do a story about the university being taken over by the students. I'll do it if you want.

Okay, then why doesn't everybody sign a sheet of paper with the stories they'll do, and have them in here as soon as they can, Wednesday at the latest.

Use The Classified Ads.

Standing: Brian Jamieson, blonde, Glen Wannamaker.

Tuition Up

No, that story about tuition going up $200 is not true . . . We didn't mean to scare people . . . Surely if you read the story and saw what Hicks was supposed to have said, you'd realize it couldn't be true. I mean do you think he'd admit to crying? . . .

I hear there are all kinds of people calling up the student union office and asking at the inquiry desk about that tuition story. You know, it's wierd. When we print the truth, nobody reads the paper, or they don't believe us if they do read it. But when we print something as exaggerated as that, they believe us.

Well, at least we tried. I think it was one of the more successful editions we've put out. At least people read it. And they believed that story about the Union taking over the university too. Of course, it is a logical extension of some of the things they are doing now, but really . . .

Christmas Catalog

And what about the Christmas catalogue, with everyone contributing something to put in it, and the fishermen's dispute, and the bit about the Sociology problem, and the last issue with the thing on drugs, and the feature on the Acadians.

Not bad for a re-building year. We should be all set for next year, with a little help from our friends.

From Left to Right: Dal Fans.

A discussion of the situation in the land of play usually spends most of its time looking backward. It seems ironical that in the era of RIGHT NOW, that we should be obsessed with the past when looking at sport. Actually it probably says a lot about the nature of the beast. Be that as it may, a portion of tradition has been ordered and so here are a few reminders to digest.

At the intercollegiate level, athletes here seemingly have the knack of doing well during the season but never being quite able to bring home the goodies that represent championships.

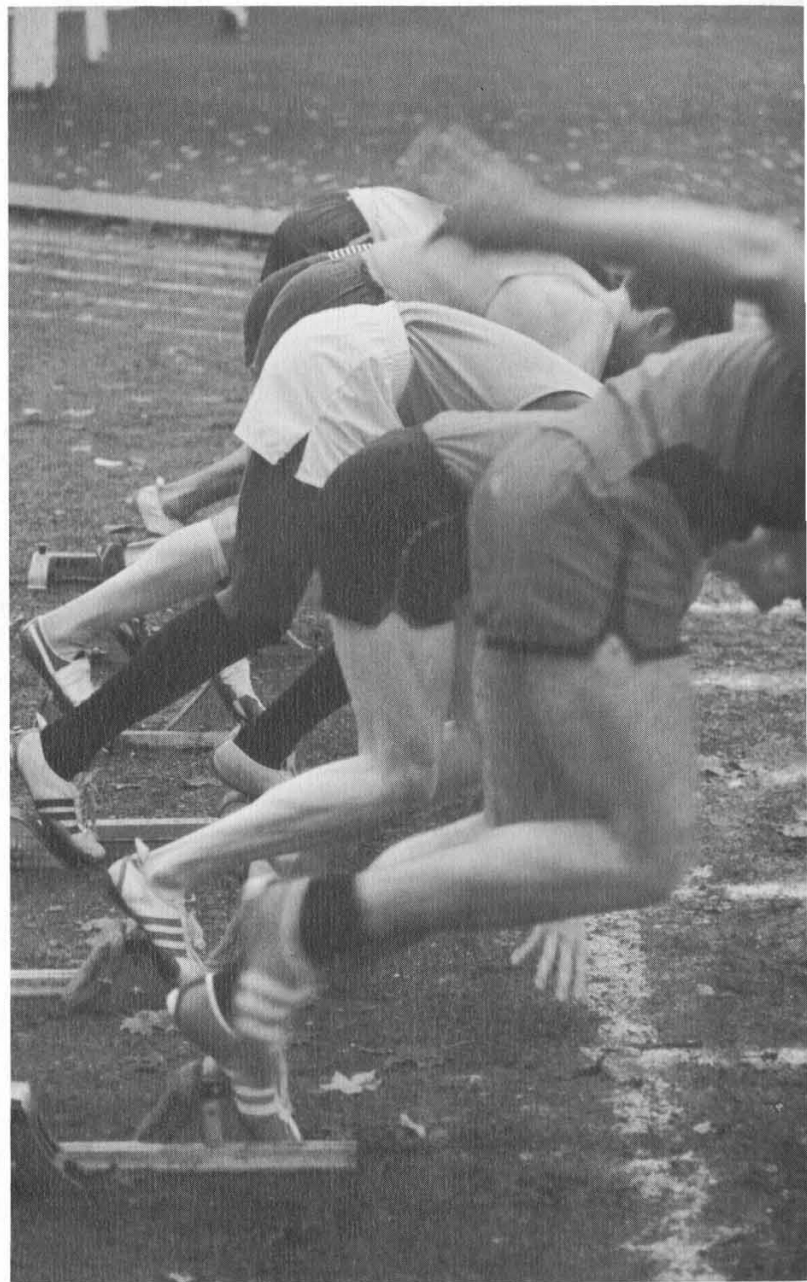

There are exceptions of course. The tennis team won the Atlantic championship again this year, as did the Track and Field team. Women's volleyball provided the girls on the team with an opportunity to travel to Calgary and Quebec City — rewards for winning the Atlantic Intercollegiate and Provincial Open Championships. Hockey and men's basketball provided us with pleasant surprises by doing so well this season (second place finishes).

Dal skiers came through with some impressive performances. The scenic event in skiing (Nordic) saw Dal win the team competition with first, second and sixth place finishes. In the Alpine event it was straight down, as Dal won the team trophy with second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth place finishes.

An absence of facilities on campus again did not stop the swimming team from coming up with some fine individual efforts. Lack of depth (people) however, kept the team as a whole from equalling the efforts of a few championship performances.

After grappling with the opposition, Dal wrestlers came out of the Atlantic championships with three first place finishers.

Contrasting those teams were ones that ran into familiar obstacles. The men's volley-have been won and lost on the playing fields, negotiations that will affect the future of athletics at Dal have been concluded in less spectacular surroundings. A philosophic and administrative body composed of students and staff has been formed to oversee athletics at Dal. The creation of this body has been preceded by a rather curious background.

Originally sports at Dal began as a casual affair, organized by students of particular teams who would arrange "exhibition" games with near-by universities. Eventually the games became more frequent and leagues were formed. The hiring and firing of the coaches was done by the student body.

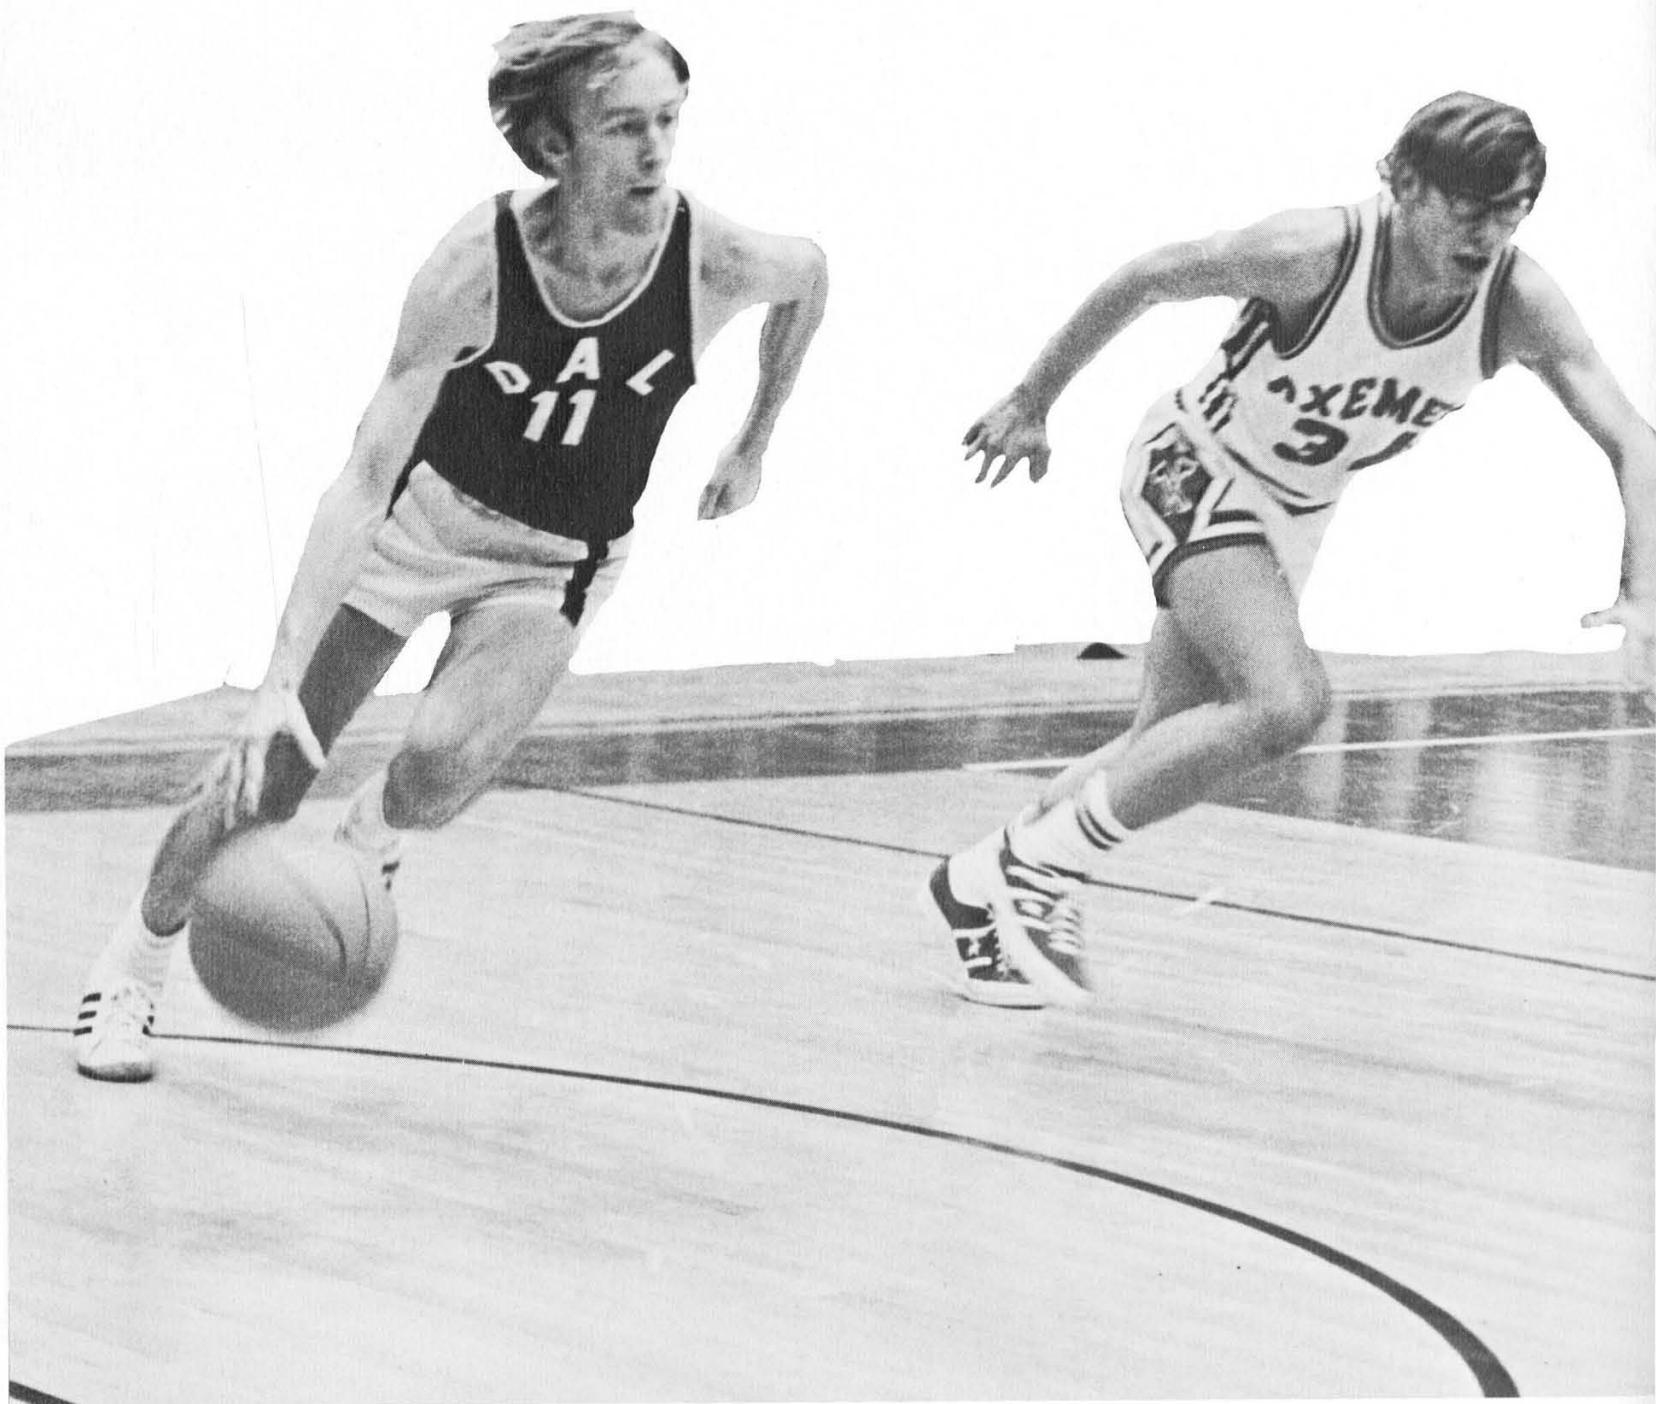

ball team finished second again, as did women's basketball and field hockey. UNB providing the stumbling block in each case.

On the other hand the football team seemed to flounder amidst internal problems, included in this were several "key" injuries. The soccer team, after winning the championship last year, couldn't keep up with the competition and fell behind Memorial — eventual national champions.

All this has been reminiscing. The immediacy of the experiences have passed. Expectations have risen and fallen or have been sustained for another year. While the battles Intercollegiate college tennis championships at the Halifax Commons.

Peter Sprogis baffles an Acadia Axeman in a Dal-Acadia game.

Size eventually overcame the "democratic" approach and the student body asked the administration to take over the sports program. That is the situation that has existed for the 30-40 years.

Now the situation has almost come full circle. As of March 1971, there exists the Dalhousie Sports and Physical Recreation Council. Representation on this committee is 50% students. The main components of this council come from the Physical Education faculty and the five standing committees involved in athletics at Dal.

The exact composition of the Council is as follows:

A. Members appointed by the President

- 2 members, one female and one male nominated by the Student's Council.
- 1 member nominated by the Student Services Committee.
- 1 member nominated by the Alumni association.
- 1 member from faculty or administrative staff.

An invitational meet at the Centennial Pool.

B. Members appointed by the 5 Standing Committees

- 5 members who are from the executive offices of each committee (this is where the staff of the physical education department will have most, if not all, the positions).
- 5 members who are students, each elected by one of the Standing Committees.
- the 5 Standing Committees are as follows
  - Men's Athletic Committee
  - Women's Athletic Committee
  - Men's Intramural Committee
  - Women's Intramural Committee
  - Physical Recreation Committee
- Director of the School of Physical Education.

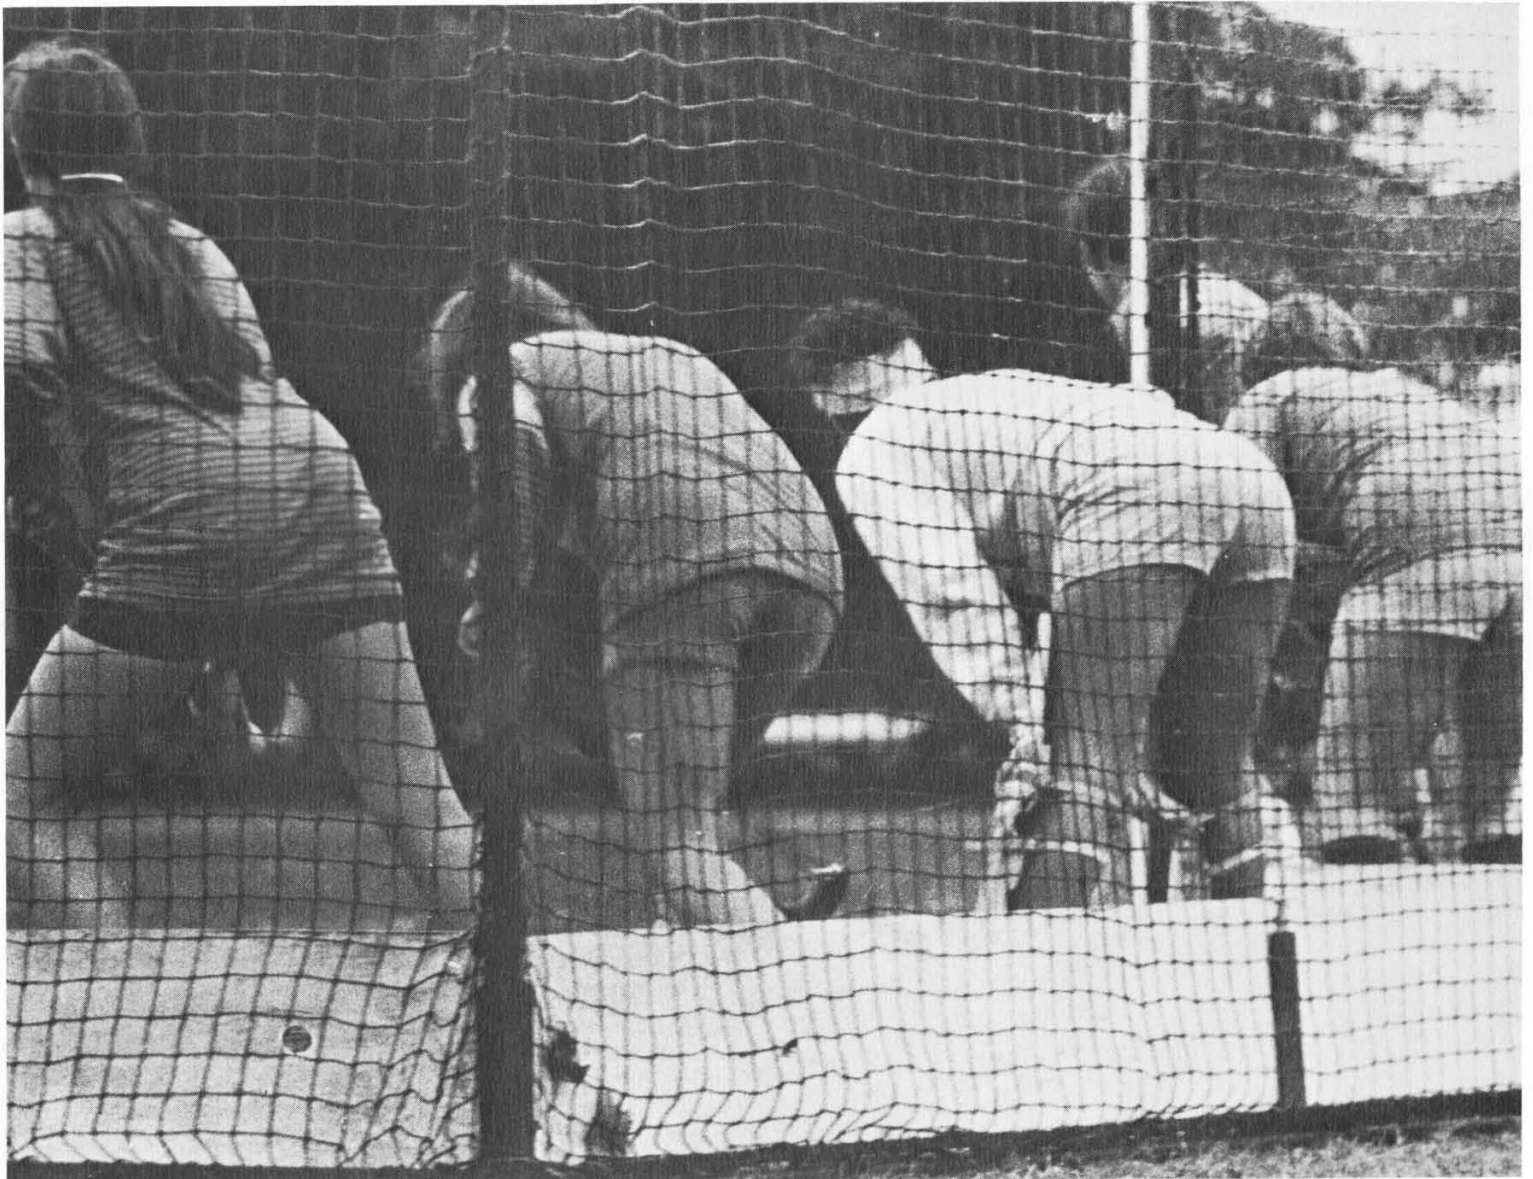

(All the preceding members have voting privileges, except the Director of the School of Physical Education)

Too much significance can not be accorded the Council. Students, through their elected members, will have a say on such policies as recruiting, scholarships and even the very principle of competitive athletics. Because the athletic budget must be accepted by the Council, the heart of the athletic program rests with the members.

What has been discussed is mainly concerned with varsity athletics. The Council is not — and should not be — concerned only with varsity athletics. Financial and time allowances that will be made in intramural and carry-over sports (sports that can be played in later life as well) are in the hands of the Council.

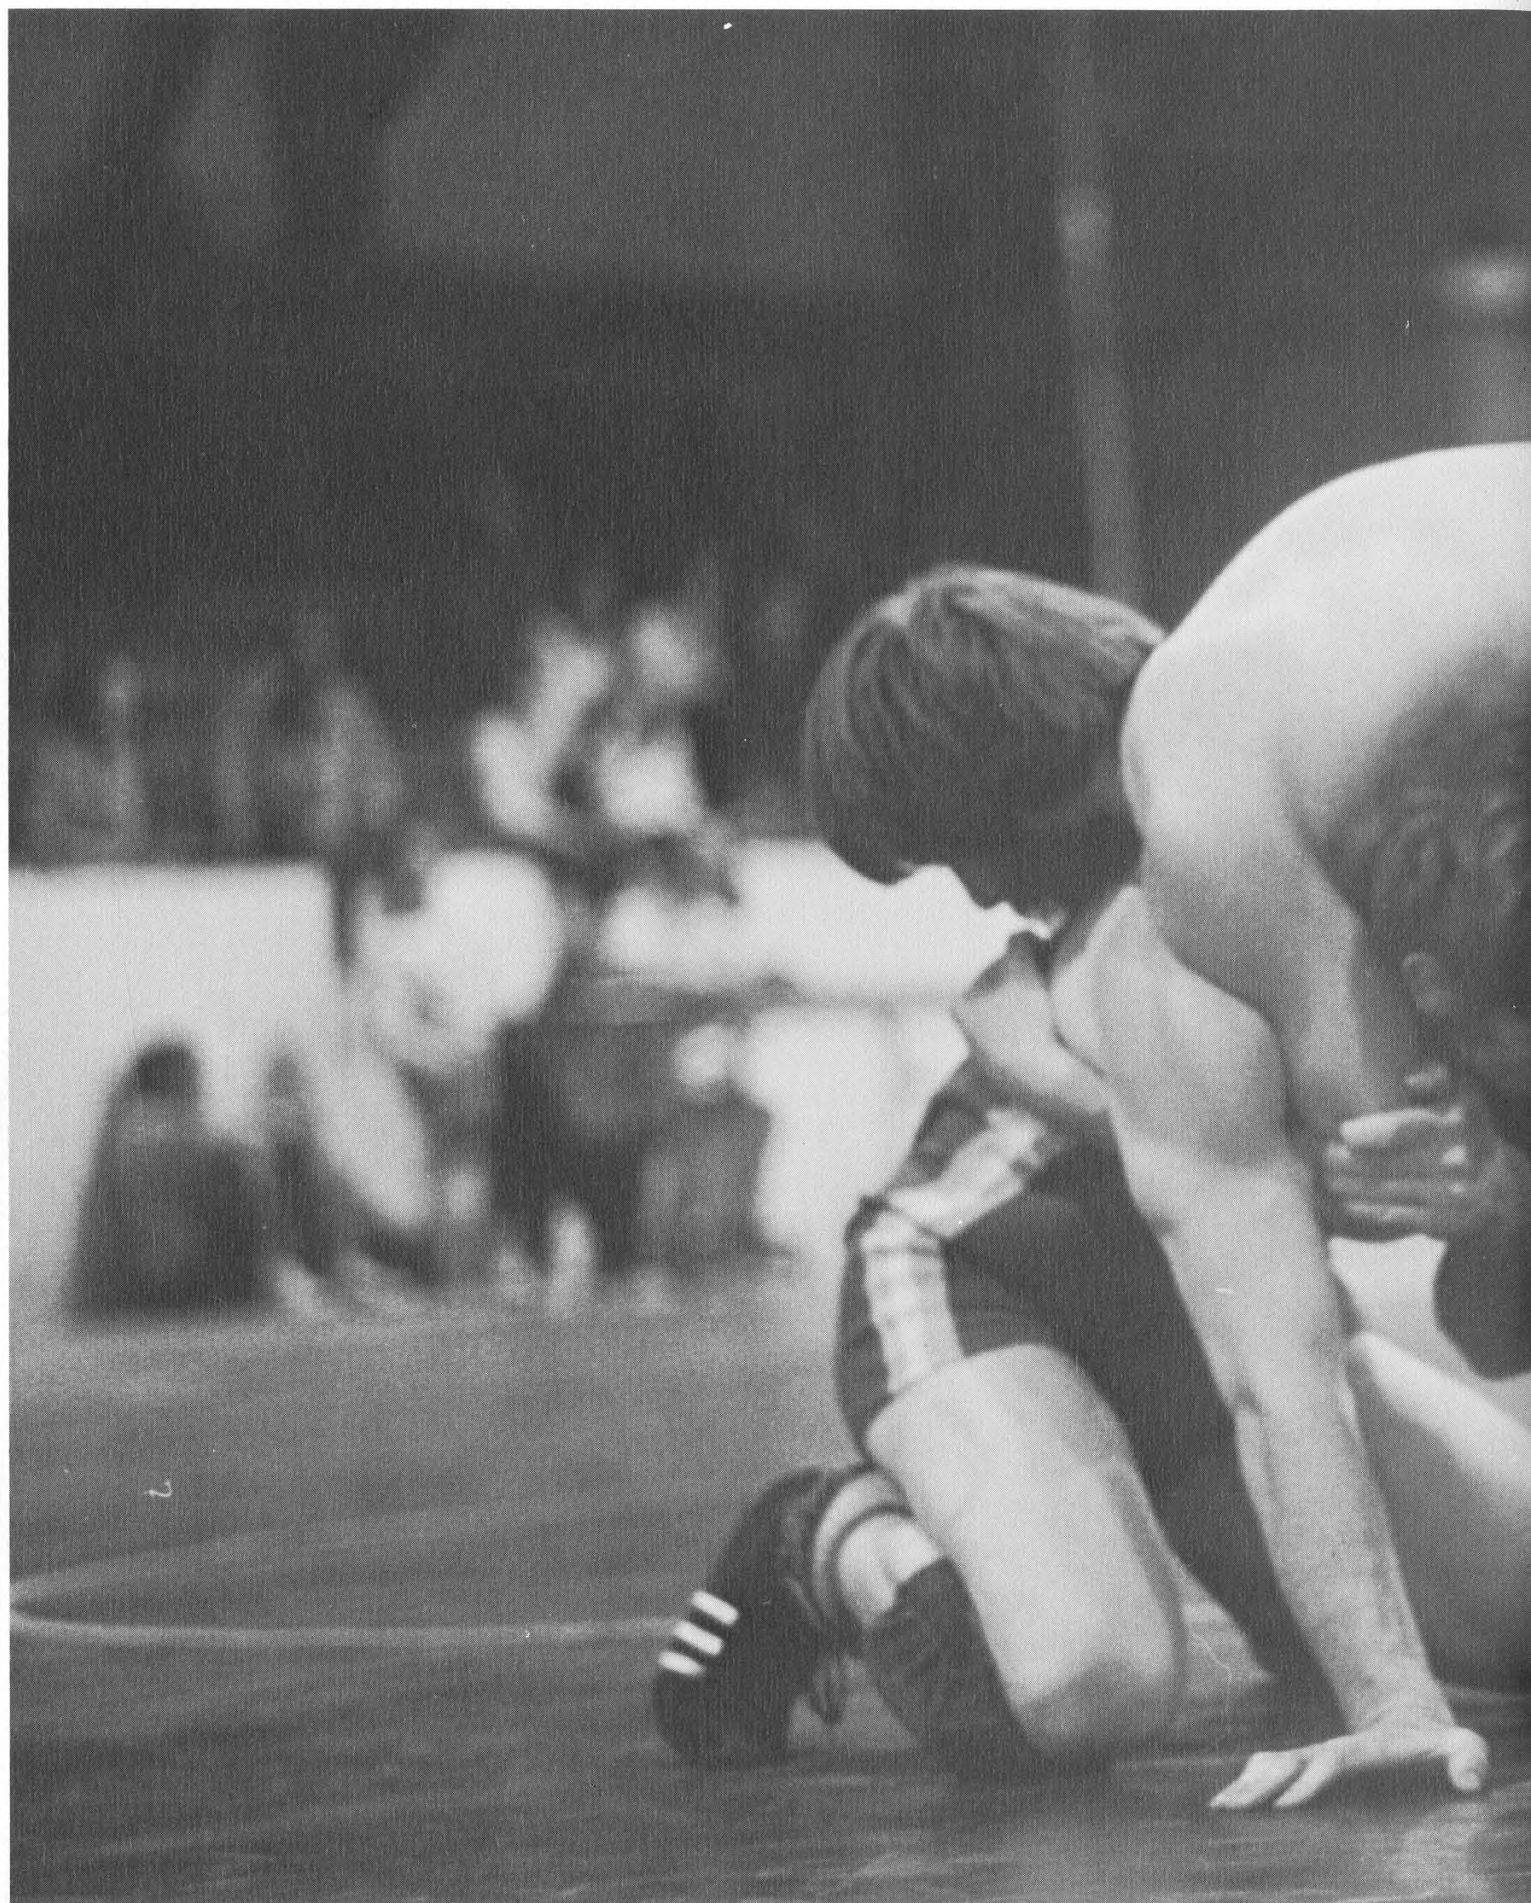

The existence of the Council does not guarantee or necessitate any changes. The fact a structure has been set up is at present, the most important aspect. How the sports and recreation program at Dal will evolve is a question left for the future.

Many people contributed either work or works to this book and I want to thank them for their efforts.

Thanks to:

John Ure who wrote the poetry at the beginning of the book, Brian Miller the Sports editor, Chuck Lapp the Photo editor, Jim Haggerty who took time from a very busy schedule to print the photo's for the Comment section on pages 210-221, and to Dorothy Wigmore who wrote the Rag Time Blues Copy.

Karen Wallace who did layout for several parts of the book had a sense of presence (she showed up every week) which was much appreciated. Margie Ferguson is, I am sure, a frustrated secretary, my spastic work habits seem to have excluded her from the participation she was willing to contribute. Thanks for the patience and the availability.

The Dal Photo Department has contributed some very fine photo's to this book. For these they deserve thanks.

Finally thanks and happiness goes out to Mary Anne Yurkiw who consistently contacted my non-staff staff each and every week.

That's about as deep as I care to shovel. I hope the Class of '71 finds something in this book that appeals to them.
