LIFE'S ESSENTIAL

 Sugar is human energy in its purest form—a single pound contains 1800 energy calories, and if these could be transmuted into mechanical energy, a pound of sugar could lift itself a thousand miles in the air—it could raise a one ton steel girder half a mile straight up—it could keep a 110 watt electric lamp burning continuously for almost twenty hours.

The Modern THINKER

Edited by Dagobert D. Runes, Ph.D.

A Truly International Magazine

FOR the intelligent reader keenly interested in the affairs of the world—affairs that embrace politics, literature, philosophy, sociology, art, science—there is a magazine which will keep him informed with the most eminent thought of the present day. That magazine is The Modern Thinker. This publication is international. Its viewpoint is unbiased and cosmopolitan. It has one interest: to present the finest writing by the finest minds. Thus you can find, side by side in The Modern Thinker, an iconoclastic essay on the ruthlessness of nature by Llewellyn Powys; a deprecation of the theology of present-day physicists by Professor Max Schoen; George Bernard Shaw on the problem of sterilization; Arnold Zweig on half-Jews and their worries in the modern world. In current issues you will find also such articles as What Is Behind Race Theories, by Franz Boaz; The Soul of Modern Man, by Carl G. Jung.

The scope of The Modern Thinker is vast. You will find it not only comprehensive but intensely interesting as well. You can do no better than to subscribe to it now. There is a special subscription rate at present—$2 for one year. Simply enclose this sum (bills, check, or money order) and mail to The Modern Thinker, 310 Riverside Drive, New York.

A USEFUL INDUSTRY

“THE petroleum industry,” you say—
“ah, yes—gasoline and oil. A very useful industry, to be sure.”

More useful than many people realize. Gasoline and oil are two of the major products of petroleum and as such they play a tremendous part in making the wheels of modern industry go round. But petroleum plays its part in the home, too—sometimes disguised so effectively that it is not recognized.

From the roof of the home whose shingles have been stained with an oil product to the basement of the home where an oil burner supplies automatic, even heat, petroleum is on the job. In the kitchen there may be an oil stove providing easily regulated cooking temperatures economically. The refrigerator may be cooled with the aid of an oil product. The heads of the matches will probably be waterproofed with paraffin, as will the paper cups that are kept handy for picnic use. There are sure to be a few jars of delectable jams and jellies sealed with wax to keep their contents fresh and immaculate; and the omnipresent can of insecticide which deals death to flies and ants owes its efficacy to the oily mixture it contains. Even the eggs used in so many dishes may have been preserved with the aid of a petroleum product.

That lovely sheen on the floors of the hall owes its presence to wax with a petroleum base, as does the rich polish adorning every article of furniture in the living room. The dressing table in milady's bedroom is dependent on petroleum for its lotions and creams and the rayon silk dress in her clothes closet was made possible by the same product.

Even the telephone, electric light and radio depend upon oil in one way or another for their existence. Truly, the modern home is a more comfortable, cleaner, brighter, happier home because of the petroleum industry.

It Gets There First

One of the most important things in business is to be at the right place at the right time. And the right time usually means getting there first.

Whether it's around the corner or across the continent, the Telephone can always get you that at the exact time you wish to be present. Not only that, it often gets you an interview with a man you've found it impossible to contact in person.

Long Distance has proved itself unsurpassed as a business getter, and in present day competition it is becoming increasingly indispensable. In order to be among the leaders, you must use this modern method to promote your business.

LIGHTING

A cheerfully lighted hall is a friendly introduction to your home and a pleasant memory to your departing guest. Let the rule of good lighting prevail here as in every other room—plenty of clear light, carefully shaded to avoid glare. Period lanterns and wall brackets on either side of a mirror are popular for decorative hall lighting.
