

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

- DANIEL C. HARVEY.—Professor of History, University of Manitoba. Author of many articles on Canadian historical subjects, including a notable paper on "Joseph Howe and Local Patriotism."
- NORMAN MCLEOD ROGERS.—Professor of History, Acadia University. Formerly Rhodes Scholar for Nova Scotia, University of Oxford.
- SIR ANDREW MACPHAIL.—Professor of the History of Medicine, McGill University, Montreal. Served in European War 1914-1919. O. B. E. Formerly Editor of The University Magazine.
- ARTHUR GORDON MELVIN.—Engaged in Mission work in China. Dr. Melvin is at present, and has been during the last few months, resident in Peking. He thus wrote his article amid the scenes to which it refers.
- SIR JOHN WILLISON.—Formerly Editor of The Globe. Author of numerous books and articles on subjects of Canadian biography and history.
- JAMES FORRESTER DAVISON.—Lecturer in Jurisprudence and Roman Law, University of Toronto.
- A. J. CROCKETT.—Of New Glasgow. Judge of the Juvenile Court for the County of Pictou, N. S. An enthusiastic promoter of interest in the records of the province.
- SIR PATRICK MCGRATH.—President of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland. Since 1894 he has been Newfoundland correspondent of the London Times. Sir Patrick McGrath has filled many offices of importance in his native colony, and has been a prolific writer for the press on both sides of the Atlantic.
- JOHN PLUMMER DERWENT LLWYD.—Dean of Nova Scotia. Formerly Vice-Provost of Trinity College, Toronto. A frequent contributor to American and Canadian magazines.
- EDWARD WILBER NICHOLS.—Professor of Classics, Dalhousie University. Author of various articles and reviews in The American Journal of Philology, etc.
- ADA MACLEOD.—Mrs. Neil MacLeod, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island. Her unwearied efforts to keep alive every memory of Island antiquities have been shown in an earlier issue of this Review.