

JOHN R. CAMERON was a student of John Graham's before graduating from Dalhousie in 1969 with first class honours in Economics and History. He worked with John Graham on the Nova Scotia Royal Commission on Education, Public Services and Provincial-Municipal Relations. Since then he has been involved in Municipal Government, and at present is a lawyer practising in Bridgetown, Nova Scotia.

CHARLES FISHMAN is Distinguished Service Professor of English & Humanities at the State University of New York at Farmingdale. He has published five books of poetry, including Mortal Companions (1977), The Death Mazurka (1989), and Zoom (1990). His anthology, Blood to Remember: American Poets on the Holocaust was released in August 1991 by Texas Tech University Press.

PHILIP GARDNER is Professor of English, and University Research Professor, at the Memorial University of Newfoundland. Among his publications are three books on E. M. Forster, including an edition of Forster's Commonplace Book (1985). His Critical Heritage volume on A. E. Housman is currently in press.

IAN C. JOHNSTON is an instructor in the new Liberal Studies degree program at Malaspina College in Nanaimo, British Columbia. He is the author of The Ironies of War: An Introduction to Homer's Iliad (Lanham, MD: University Press of America, 1987).

ANNE-MARIE PERROTTA is a poet and lyricist, as well as the personal manager for the up-and-coming rock band "Thrill of it All." She works at an animation production company in Montreal. Her poetry has appeared in "New Writer's Magazine" (U.S.).

ALASDAIR SINCLAIR, a longtime colleague of John Graham's, has been Vice-President (Academic & Research) at Dalhousie where he is also a professor of Economics.

ROWLAND SMITH is McCulloch Professor in English at Dalhousie University and Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. A former chairperson of the English Department and Director of the Centre for African Studies, he has recently edited Critical Essays on Nadine Gordimer (1990).

J. J. STEINFELD lives in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. His work has appeared in numerous Canadian literary magazines and anthologies, and he has published four short-story collections, the most recent being The Miraculous Hand and Other Stories (Ragweed Press, 1991), as well as a novel, Our Hero in the Cradle of Confederation (Pottersfield Press, 1987).

DANIEL WOOLF is Associate Professor of History at Dalhousie University where he has taught since 1987. He is the author of The Idea of History in Early Stuart England: Erudition, Ideology and the Light of Truth from the Accession of James I to the Civil War (Toronto, 1990). He has also published several articles on the sense of the past in early modern England and is now at work on a book concerning The Origins of Modern Historical Culture.