

- E. CARL ABBOTT is Associate Professor of Medicine at Dalhousie University. He obtained his MD from Dalhousie in 1969 and after two years of general practice began a Residency in Internal Medicine in Halifax and Toronto. He obtained his Fellowship (FRCPC) in 1965. He spent a year in Research at St. Mary's Hospital, London in 1966, on an MRC Fellowship in Hypertension/Endocrinology which have continued to be his main interests. He is a member of several Canadian Societies: Clinical Pharmacology, Hypertension and Endocrinology and Metabolism.
- R. N. ANDERSON was born in Prince Edward Island, received his MD degree from Dalhousie University (1954) followed by graduate education in Internal Medicine and Cardiology in Halifax, London, England, and Toronto. Following this, he joined the Department of Medicine of Dalhousie University and served a term as Head of the Department. He is also a fellow of the American Colleges of Cardiology and Physicians.
- K. A. ATERMAN obtained his MD degree in Prague and later studied in Belfast, N. Ireland (MB, BCH, BAO, [Hons.]). He later obtained a PhD at the University of Birmingham, a DSC from Queen's University (Belfast) and his FAC Path. (London). He has been the recipient of several scholarship/fellowships. Prior to his appointment with the Dalhousie University Department of Pathology, he held appointments in Philadelphia and Buffalo, U.S.A. After his retirement from his position in Halifax in 1979, he was Director of the Regional Laboratory in Fredericton until 1986. He is currently Hon. Research Associate, Department of Biology, University of New Brunswick. He has written 130 scientific papers and has a keen interest in the history of medicine.
- WILLIAM BAER has received a 1994 National Endowment for the Arts Creative Writing Grant in fiction. His stories have appeared in The Iowa Review, The Antigone Review, and Kansas Quarterly; and his poems have appeared in Poetry, The New Criterion, and The Hudson Review.
- T. F. BASKETT is Professor of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Dalhousie University and Chief, Department of Gynaecology, Camp Hill Medical Centre. He was educated at the Belfast Royal Academy 1952-1958. His undergraduate medical training was at the Queen's University, Belfast, 1958-1964. Postgraduate Medical Education: Royal Victoria Hospital/Royal Maternity Hospital/Belfast City Hospital/Laganvalley Hospital, Northern Ireland, 1964-1970. Before coming to Dalhousie University he was a Clinical Fellow, Winnipeg General Hospital, University of Manitoba, 1970-71. He is the Associate Editor, Journal of the Society of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists of Canada.

RHONDA BATCHELOR lives in Victoria, B.C. where she is manager of the Hawthorne Bookshop. She and her husband Charles Lillard operate Reference West which publishes the chapbooks for a highly acclaimed reading series. She is the author of Bearings (Brick Books) and Interpreting Silence to be published by Beach Holme in 1994.

W. F. BYNUM is Professor of the History of Medicine at University College London, and Director of the Academic Unit of the Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine.

DEIRDRE DWYER has taught English as a Second Language in Tokyo, Japan for three years after which she spent a splendid month in Thailand. She also travelled for nine months through Asia and Europe. Currently she and her husband are building a cottage on Nova Scotia's Eastern Shore.

GEORGE E. EHRLICH is a graduate of Harvard University and the Chicago Medical School. He has held Professorships in Medicine at Temple University, New York University and the University of Pennsylvania, has edited eleven books and has written more than 200 articles, many dealing with the history of medicine in biography, art, and music. His interest in Mozart dates back to his early childhood in Austria, before his family emigrated to the United States before World War II.

ELIZABETH LUND lives in Dedham, Massachusetts. She earned her MFA in poetry from Cornell University where she then taught creative writing. She now edits and reviews poetry for The Christian Science Monitor.

ALAN J. MACLEOD was a schoolteacher and RCAF airman (RCAF Bomber Command WWII) prior to studying medicine. After graduating from Dalhousie in 1960 he spent six years in general practice before beginning graduate training in internal medicine (Halifax and Chapel Hill, North Carolina). He is presently Professor of Medicine, Dalhousie University. He has served as President of the Medical Society of Nova Scotia, The Halifax Medical Society and the Nova Scotia Society of Internal Medicine. Dr. MacLeod founded the Nephrology Service and Renal Dialysis Unit at the Victoria General Hospital and holds memberships in a number of medical societies.

T. J. MURRAY is Professor of Medical Humanities and Professor of Medicine (Neurology) at Dalhousie University and Director of the Dalhousie Multiple Sclerosis Research Unit. He was Dean of Medicine at Dalhousie from 1985-1992. He was born in Pictou, Nova Scotia and attended Pictou Academy and St. Francis Xavier University. He graduated from Dalhousie University in Medicine in 1963 and took up solo general practice in Nashwaaksis, New Brunswick. Dr. Murray returned to Halifax for postgraduate training in Internal Medicine and Neurology, and was a Commonwealth Scholar in 1967, studying at the University of London in England, and the National Hospital, Queen Square. He continued his postgraduate training in Toronto and Halifax and became a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of Canada in 1969. He has served on the Boards of many medical and community organizations. He was the founder and first President of the Dalhousie Society for the History of Medicine, and is President-Elect of the Consortium of MS Centres and Chairman of the Canadian Medical Forum. He was the Vice President of the American Academy of Neurology and President of the Canadian Neurology Society. He served as Governor of the Atlantic Provinces for the American College of Physicians, and then became Chairman of the Board of Governors. He now serves as a Regent of the College. He was President of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges and in 1994 was the first Dr. J. Wendell MacLeod Lecturer for ACMC. Dr. Murray has over 200 medical publications and presentations on multiple sclerosis, other neurological disorders, medical education and medical history, and is on the editorial board of several medical journals.

KAREN PAWSON (LAPPRAND) is a correspondence writer for the B.C. Ministry of the Attorney General. This is her first published piece of fiction.

DAVID P. SCHROEDER is Professor of Music at Dalhousie University. He has a special interest in late eighteenth-century studies, having published a book, Haydn and the Enlightenment, in 1990. A current project involves the Mozart correspondence (supported by SSHRCC). His other articles of a multidisciplinary nature concern the composers Schubert and Berg.

J. PHILIP WELCH obtained his medical degree at the University of Edinburgh. He subsequently studied medical and human genetics at Johns Hopkins, obtaining a PhD in Human Genetics. He is a founding fellow of the Canadian College of Medical Geneticists. He came to Dalhousie in 1967 and is currently Professor of Pediatrics and also Director of the IWK Hospital Cytogenetics Laboratory. He has written on a wide range of topics in human and medical genetics, including the genetic constitution of social behavior.

MARY WHEATER trained as a zoologist at Cambridge University and was a lecturer in zoology at the University of Dundee. She qualified in medicine in 1988 and is currently Senior Registrar in paediatrics at the Norwich Acute Unit, U.K.