

About the Authors

Born and raised in Halifax, NS, Leah Boulos is currently completing her Master of Library and Information Studies degree at Dalhousie University. A woman of eclectic tastes, Leah holds a Bachelor of Music in piano from Mount Allison University, and will soon be embarking on an internship at Dalhousie's W.K. Kellogg Health Sciences Library. Leah is a longtime lover of young adult literature and has greatly enjoyed working on this issue of the YA Hotline.

Zoe Dickinson is a Master of Library and Information Studies candidate at Dalhousie University. Originally from Aylmer, Quebec, she completed an undergraduate degree at Concordia University with a double major in Liberal Arts and Classical Languages and Literature. Zoe is an editorial chair for the Dalhousie Journal of Interdisciplinary Management, as well as a co-chair of the Dalhousie student chapter of the Canadian Library Association. Upon graduation, she hopes to work as a children's or young adult librarian in a public library.

Jenna Knorr is a 2016 MLIS Candidate at Dalhousie University. Originally from Fredericton, NB, Jenna graduated from St. Thomas University in 2014 with a BA in English Literature. A life-long reader and writer, Jenna found her literary passion in 2013 when she spent a year teaching spoken word poetry workshops to middle school students. After graduation, Jenna hopes to work as a children's or teen services librarian in a public library. Jenna enjoys travelling, going to concerts, and eating free food.

Elizabeth O'Brien has been a self-proclaimed feminist since childhood. A 2016 MLIS candidate at Dalhousie University, she graduated from St. Francis Xavier University with a degree in History and Women's and Gender Studies, where she was particularly interested in the intersections between gender, bodies, and politics. Since graduating, Elizabeth has lived and worked in Halifax, NS, spending time organizing around feminist issues. Once she graduates, Elizabeth hopes to work as a teen services librarian where she can help transform young adults into rad library-loving feminists. ☒

Special thanks to Aimee Goguen for contributing design ideas and design inspiration for this issue of the YA Hotline.
