

CONTRIBUTORS

Ewing Campbell lives in Texas.

L.W. Conolly teaches English at the University of Alberta.

David Herold teaches history at the American University in Washington, D.C.

Alan Kennedy, whose book The Protean Self recently appeared, teaches English at Dalhousie.

Prince John Loewenstein, F.R.A.I., is Professor Emeritus (Anthropology) of Saint Mary's University in Halifax.

R.H. McDonald, a graduate of Dalhousie, teaches history at the University of Western Ontario.

Alan T. McKenzie is Assistant Head of the Department of English, Purdue University.

Jerome Meckier, an authority on Aldous Huxley, teaches at the University of Kentucky.

G.A. Santangelo is Professor of Comparative Literature at San Diego State University.

Bernice Schrank teaches English at the Memorial University of Newfoundland.

P.G. Skidmore teaches history at Brescia College in London, Ontario.

George Woodcock, author of numerous books and articles, is the Editor of Canadian Literature.

Verse from John Ditsky, Windsor, Ontario; Gilean Douglas, Whaletown, B.C.; Charles Edward Eaton, Woodbury, Connecticut; George A. Freek, Carbondale, Illinois; D.A. Giffin, Halifax; Steven Kilby, Point Claire, Quebec; Dave Margoshes, Calgary; George Twelftree, Westmount, Quebec; Graeme Wilson (translations of Hagiwara Sakutarō), Hong Kong.