

EDITORIAL

The bulk of this issue consists of articles written in tribute to Edgar Z. Friedenberg. Edgar Friedenberg was a valued colleague at Dalhousie for fifteen years until his retirement in 1986. The idea of a special issue of the Review was mooted at that time, but before the organization of it was very far advanced, we discovered that Lon Dubinsky and John Willinsky were ahead of us with their plans for a full-blown Festschrift. Arrangements for publication of the Festschrift have proceeded somewhat more slowly than was hoped, so now, Dubinsky and Willinsky have offered us some of the articles originally gathered by them, an offer we could not refuse. We have added to these an article by Stuart Semple about Edgar's years at Dalhousie, and especially their importance for the Department of Education. The Dalhousie Review thanks John Willinsky for his editorial assistance with the articles by Dale Gibson, Barry Adam, John Godfrey and himself.

With the next issue of the Dalhousie Review, the annual subscription will be increased from the present $10.00 to $15.00, and the three-year subscription from $24.00 to $36.00. We regret the necessity for this, but readers will no doubt appreciate that, at the price, the Review has been a remarkable bargain for several years. This is the first price increase since 1979. We will continue to accept renewals at the old rates until the next issue is published.
