

EDITORIAL NOTE

This issue of the Dalhousie Review continues the publication of papers presented at the 1989 conference of the Atlantic Association of University Teachers of English. The first of the papers from this conference to be published, Larry McDonald's "The Politics of Influence," appeared in vol. 67, no. 4. The essays and articles in this issue that derive from the same conference are those by Vincent J. Bowes, Chris Ferns, Lesley Higgins and Martha Westwater. We thank Bruce Greenfield, of the English Department at Dalhousie, for his assistance in facilitating their availability, and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada for special financial assistance towards the cost of publishing selected conference papers.

CORRECTION

We very much regret that "Varieties of Responsibility" by F. Hilton Page, published in Volume 69 number 2 of the Dalhousie Review, contains a typesetting error on p. 166. The Greek text of the quotation from Theophrastus should read:

προσποιησις τισι λογων και πραξεων μετ' ευνοιας.
