BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY OF
ARCHITECTS IN CANADA, 1800-1950

Research and manuscript preparation are continuing on a Biographical Dictionary of Architects in Canada for the period 1800 to 1950. Begun in 1976, it is expected that this work will be ready for publication in late 1983. The work is being edited and compiled by Robert G. Hill, an honours graduate of the School of Architecture at the University of Toronto (1972), and at present a practicing architect in Toronto.

Architects who qualify for entry in the Dictionary are those known as, or who have called themselves "architect", and who, either as an amateur or as a professional, have made architectural designs for buildings in Canada during the study period. Anyone whose career ended before 1800, or commenced after 1950 is excluded from the work, as are those who are best known in other professions or trades, such as "builder", "contractor", "engineer", "carpenter", or "surveyor". An architect in Canada includes those resident and practicing architecture in this country at one time or another, as well as those who have made a contribution to the architectural development of Canada, either through built works or unrealized projects. This includes several American, British and European architects.

To date, more than 900 names of architects practicing in Canada during the study have been identified. The entries, arranged alphabetically, will vary in length from a few lines to several pages, and will focus primarily on the architectural background and career of the individual. Information sources will be cited, including locations of architectural drawings, photographs, books, manuscripts, wills and probate data, journal articles, etc. Each entry will be followed by a chronological list of significant architectural works, with data on location, year of construction, client, publication references, and whether the work is extant or demolished. Where appropriate or necessary, subjective comment will be made on the nature of the work, but the emphasis will be on objective, factual information on the subject architect. The Dictionary will be accompanied by an index of persons and places mentioned in the text, to permit easy reference to a building owner or location if the architect is unknown.

DICTIONNAIRE BIOGRAPHIQUE DES

Les recherches et la préparation du manuscrit du Dictionnaire biographique des architectes du Canada 1800-1950 progressent continuellement. Cette oeuvre, initiée en 1976, sera complétée prête à être publiée vers la fin de 1983. Le responsable du projet est Robert G. Hill, diplômé d'honneur de l'École de l'architecture de l'Université de Toronto (1972), et architecte professionnel à Toronto.

Les architectes choisis pour faire partie de ce Dictionnaire sont ceux qui sont connus sous le titre d'architecte, d'abord, et qui, soit en tant qu'amateur ou professionnel, ont été responsable du design d'édifices canadiens au cours de la période étudiée. Sont exclus de ce projet les architectes dont la carrière date d'avant 1800 ou après 1950, ainsi que ces professionnels spécialisés dans le rôle d'entrepreneur, de fournisseur, d'ingénieur, de charpentier ou de géomètre expert. "L'architecte du Canada" comprend les éléments que voici:

- il a vécu et a exercé son rôle professionnel d'architecte au Canada;
- ou
- il est architecte qui, tout en demeurant et travaillant à l'étranger, a contribué d'une façon importante à l'évolution de l'architecture au Canada, soit avec des projets actuels ou non-réalisés. Nombre d'architectes américains, anglais et européens font partie de cette catégorie.

Jusqu'à date, les noms de plus de 900 actifs au Canada dans la période 1800-1950 ont été identifiés. Les inscriptions, données dans l'ordre alphabétique, sont plus ou moins compréhensives, certaines étant quelques lignes de long, à peine; d'autres couvrant plusieurs pages. Elles se concentrent sur la carrière et la vie professionnelle de l'architecte en ce qui a trait à l'architecture principalement. Les sources documentaires sont identifiées, ainsi que les collections où se trouvent les dessins architecturaux, les photographies, les livres, les manuscrits, les testaments et leurs homologations, les articles de journaux, etc. Chaque inscription est suivie d'une liste ordre chronologique d'oeuvres architecturales importantes, avec les informations pertinentes sur l'endroit, la date de sa construction, le nom du client, les publications, et si l'édifice existe toujours ou s'il a été démolé. Les commentaires

Typical entries in the Dictionary will be based on primary source material, including unpublished papers and records, frequently obtained from family relatives and descendants. In addition, a detailed search is in progress in library and archival sources in Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Chicago, New York City, Washington, Los Angeles, Boston, and London, England for relevant data on the career and works of architects in Canada.

More than 50 North American and British architectural periodicals are being indexed, and hundreds of related books and general periodicals have been located and noted as references for individual entries. Dozens of daily and weekly newspapers from Canadian towns and cities are being reviewed for important data on tender calls, competitions, building construction reports, as well as for biographical and obituary information.

The following is a partial list of the more than 400 names of Canadian architects whose life and work in the nineteenth century is being studied for the Dictionary. Each name is followed by the name of the city where they lived and practiced.

personnels sont inclus là où il est jugé propice, mais pour la plupart l'accent est sur une description objective, basée sur les faits. Le Dictionnaire offre aussi un catalogue des personnes et des endroits mentionnés dans le text, afin de faciliter les recherches à l'aide du nom du propriétaire ou de l'endroit en question, par exemple, dans le cas où le nom de l'architecte est inconnu.

Les inscriptions incluses dans le Dictionnaire sont basées en général sur des sources originales y compris les documents non publiés transmis aux descendants de l'architecte en question. En plus, des recherches spécialisées dans les bibliothèques et les archives de Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, Montréal, Chicago, New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Boston et London, en Angleterre assurent que les détails les plus importants sur la vie et l'oeuvre des architectes du Canada sont découverts et soulignés.

Plus de 50 périodiques sur l'architecture publiés en Amérique du nord et en Angleterre sont indexés; des centaines de livres et de périodiques non-spécialisés ont été utilisés et pris en note pour les inscriptions particulières. Les journaux quotidiens et hebdomadaires canadiens sont étudiés régulièrement et fournissent d'importants renseignements sur la soumission de travaux, les compétitions, les rapports sur la construction en plus d'une documentation biographique et nécrologique.

Plus de 400 architectes canadiens du 19<sup>e</sup> siècle, leur vie et leur oeuvre, ont été recherchés pour ce Dictionnaire biographique. La liste que voici n'inclue qu'une partie de ceux-ci et sert à donner une idée l'étendue du projet. Chaque nom est accompagné du nom de la ville où l'architecte a vécu et travaillé.

The following is a partial list of the more than 600 names of Canadian architects whose life and work in the early to mid-twentieth century is being studied for the Dictionary. Each name is followed by the principal city for the location of their practice. With the growth of the professional associations and architectural practices in the early part of this century, there were by 1950 more than 1600 registered practitioners across the country. The Dictionary will focus only on those architects (now deceased) who have made a significant and recognized contribution to Canadian architecture up to the year 1950.

Interested individuals who can provide additional information on architects in this country practicing during the study period are invited to write the editor at:

Vu le manque d'espace, il est impossible de dresser ici la liste de plus de 600 architectes de 20<sup>e</sup> siècle dont l'oeuvre sera décrite dans le Dictionnaire biographique. La croissance de l'architecture en tant que carrière professionnelle à partir du début du siècle est telle qu'en 1950, l'on y comptait déjà plus de 1600 membres à travers le pays. Ce Dictionnaire biographique se concentre surtout sur ces architectes dont la contribution à l'architecture canadienne avant 1950 est notablement importante et reconnue.
