

DONNA PUCCIANI

PATIENCE

But now the night is clear and cold.

Patience is the necessary virtue by which we are required to love

that which is un-loveable:

mounds of grey snow,

the weight of ice on a barren branch, the spartan stillness

of a dead world mourning

the silent harp in the hills.